Group Would Include All Types of Transportation

MAPS PROGRAM
Committee Would Revise I. C. C. Rate-Making Rules

Washington—(P)—The president's special committee on railroads recommended today creation of a transportation board to be charged with responsibility for regulating all modes of transportation.

The committee, composed of three representatives each from railroad management and labor, proposed a comprehensive program for immediate rehabilitation of the carriers.

The committee urged revision of the rate-making rules of the interstate commerce commission and substitution of a new rule "applicable to all modes of transportation."

Repeal of the so-called long and short haul clause, which prevents railroads from charging less for a long haul than for a short haul over the same route also was proposed.

The committee suggested that a court be established to have exclusive jurisdiction over matters connected with railroad reorganizations, relieving the interstate commerce commission of all responsibility in that field.

Would Restore Initiative
The committee also recommended that the I. C. C. be relieved of responsibility for prescribing a general plan of consolidation for railroads, "thereby restoring to the carriers all initiative, but requiring approval by the transportation board of any proposed consolidation."

The committee has been steadily at work since a special mediation board turned down a proposal by the carriers that employees take a 15 per cent wage cut. The cut has been suggested as a way to improve the lines' finances, but with that possibility gone, other avenues were explored.

A White House summary of the report touched particularly on competition the railroads must combat. It said in part:

"The major factor in the present distressed condition of the railroads is the low volume of their traffic. A contributing factor is the depressed character of many of their rates."

Charge Favoritism
"Competitive modes of transportation are partially responsible for the former and almost wholly responsible for the latter. To the extent that the inroads made upon railroad traffic and revenues by other modes of transportation are not due to natural advantages which the latter possess, but are attributable to artificial advantages accruing to their competitors as a result of governmental favoritism in any respect, the railroads have a right to object. Such favoritism now exists in pronounced degree in the important matters of regulation, taxation and subsidies."

"While substantial relief should come with improvement in general business conditions, the removal of these important contributing causes is essential to the healthful functioning of the transportation industry. Certain temporary measures are necessary and should be adopted, but the only way in which anything of lasting benefit may be accomplished is by equalizing the situation of all modes of transportation with respect to the three important matters mentioned."

Public Interest
The committee said that the interest of the public as well as those of the employees involved should be considered in connection with any proposal for consolidation.

The transportation board recommended suggested that an independent agency be created, charged with the duty of investigating and reporting to congress facts

What Are Little Girls Made Of?

The old rhyme has it they are made of "sugar and spice and every thing nice." And little boys are "scissors and snails and puppy dog tails." The author must have been a woman — to have shown such partiality to the feminine of the species... and she evidently had brothers who delighted in pulling her curls and wrecking her doll houses. At any rate, we'll give little boys an even break with their dancier opposites and change the line to "crystal and wine and everything fine."

German Press Sees 'Rupture' With America

Officials at Berlin and Washington Take Cautious Tone

TENSION IS GROWING
Relations Between France and Italy Continue Strained

Washington—(P)—Three vital international issues—growing strain between Germany and the United States, Italian aspirations for French territory and the pan-American question of continental solidarity—hung in the balance today.

In Berlin, an official said it was premature to forecast Germany's reaction to the rebuff with which Sumner Welles, acting United States secretary of state, received a German protest yesterday against a speech by Interior Secretary Harold L. Ickes. Washington officials also said discussion of a complete rupture were premature.

Two authoritative Nazi papers—Reichsruhrer Hitler's own Volkischer Beobachter and Field Marshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering's National Zeitung of Essen—used the terms "rupture" and "abrogation" of German-American relations, however, in new attacks on Ickes.

Daladier Stands Firm

Fortified by victory in the chamber of deputies, French Premier Daladier turned to meet Italy's denunciation of the 1935 agreement regarding Tunisia. The premier's friends said he was prepared to refuse flatly to go beyond the agreement in territorial concessions if Premier Mussolini followed up "unofficial" fascist clamor with official Italian demands for French possessions.

Daladier's majority in the chamber grew from 137 yesterday to 137 early today as his 1939 ordinary budget of 66,128,402,780 francs ($1,735,537,440) won chamber approval by a vote of 386 to 229. Many right-wing and center deputies who had abstained at first from voting supported the premier for fear of helping overthrow his cabinet.

A snarled situation awaited clarification at the Pan-American conference in Lima, Peru.

Dr. Carlos Concha, president of the conference, announced that "we already have reached an agreement" on a solidarity and defense declaration. But both Brazil and

Jurors Convict Martin Snyder

Find Him Guilty of Attempting to Murder Myrl Alderman

Los Angeles—(P)—His nativity brown suit exchanged for a somber blue jail uniform, Martin "The Gimp" Snyder, convicted of attempting to murder pianist Myrl Alderman, sat glumly in his cell today and remarked:

"This is an alibi of a way for the story to end."

The end of the story of what happened the night of Oct. 15 in Alderman's luxurious Hollywood Hills home was written yesterday when a jury of six men and six women found Snyder guilty of wounding the pianist who succeeded him in the husband of vocalist Ruth Etting, but acquitted him of attempting to murder Miss Etting and his daughter, Edith Snyder, and of carrying a gun with defaced numbers.

A charge that he kidnapped Alderman was dismissed by the court on motion of the prosecution, after the jury announced there was no possibility of agreement on that allegation. Earlier, a charge that Snyder kidnapped Miss Etting and Miss Snyder likewise was dismissed at the state request.

Conviction on the single count carries with it a term of up to 20 years in prison. Snyder faced Christmas in jail, because his attorney, Jerry Giesler, announced he would not plead for a new trial until Tuesday, when sentencing is scheduled.

Award Contract for Rural Electric Line in Waupaca County

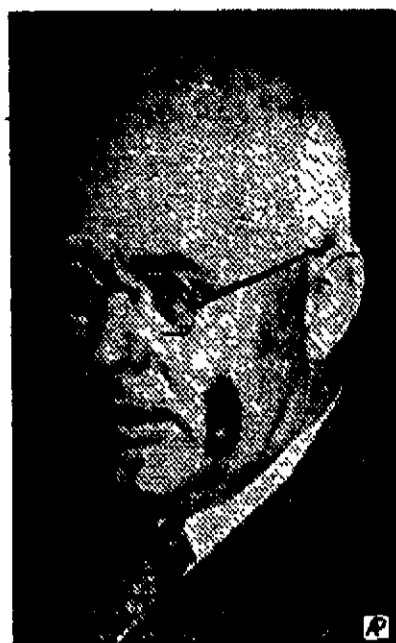

Madison—(P)—Contract for construction of 145 miles of rural electric distribution line for the Waupaca Electric cooperative has been awarded to Honold and La Page, Inc., of Sheboygan, subject to approval of the rural electric administration in Washington.

John A. Becker, general manager of the Wisconsin Development Authority, said today the Sheboygan firm had submitted a low bid of $107,080.10. Seven contractors submitted bids at the cooperative offices in Iowa Wednesday.

The REA has authorized a total loan of $151,000 for the project.

Appleton Man Robbed Of $15, Watch on Road

A man who gave his name and address as Orville Clausen, 320 N. Appleton street, was robbed of his watch and $15 when two men stopped his car about 9 o'clock last night on Highway 41 about six miles north of Green Bay, he told Green Bay police. Clausen said the two men stopped his car, a black 1937 Ford, across the highway and forced him to stop his machine.

MAY GET TVA JOB

Washington—(P)—Representative Rankin (D-Miss.) predicted today that Senator James P. Pope (D-Ia.) would be appointed a director of the Tennessee Valley Authority.

Pope (above) was defeated for re-nomination and retires from the senate in January.

"In my opinion Senator Pope will be appointed to the vacancy in the directorate of TVA that was caused by the removal of Dr. Arthur E. Morgan," said Rankin, a co-author of the TVA act.

Pope, he said, has the backing of "the friends of TVA and I don't mind telling you that he has my unqualified indorsement."

8 Blackmailers Took Money From Dead Drug Chief

Attorney Says They 'Profited Financially Because of Knowledge'

New York—(P)—Eight blackmailers fed from the income of F. Donald Coster-Musica, master swindler, government investigators asserted today as they studied the strange, half-incoherent note left by the man who ended his amazing career with a bullet in his head.

The note—penned by the president of the McKesson and Robbins drug firm, in the last, desperate minutes of his blasted life—was released by Samuel Reich, attorney for the promoter.

"As God is my judge," said the note's shaky writing, "I am the victim of Wall street plunder and blackmail in a struggle for honest existence."

Gregory F. Nonan, acting United States attorney, said eight persons known to his office were aware that Coster really was Musica, swindler and former convict, and had "profited financially because of that knowledge."

The identity of the eight, Noonan said, would not be disclosed until they were under arrest.

Although Coster-Musica strove, unavailingly in the light of developments since his suicide last Friday—to lend protection to his three brothers, government attorneys were not impressed.

In Washington, Assistant Attorney General Brien McMahon declared "our information definitely indicates that the surviving brothers are more culpable than he would lead us to believe."

The surviving brothers—George Dietrich-Musica, George Vernard-Musica and Robert Dietrich-Musica—were named yesterday in a sensational indictment charging them, and the corporation as well, with a conspiracy and violation of the securities act.

Fiance's Diary Fails To Avert Prison Term

Green Bay—(P)—His fiance's diary did not prevent Edmund Brodyna, 28, a painter, from receiving a sentence of one to three years in state prison on a burglary charge yesterday.

Brodyna, tried in circuit court, was convicted of taking a pistol and ammunition from a sports goods shop a year ago. The young woman supported her claim he was in her company on the night in question by references in her diary.

The state argued she was unable to satisfactorily explain other entries made near the time.

20 Persons are Rescued From Disabled Ship

Two Women Included Among Survivors in Storm on Atlantic

NIGHT OF ANXIETY

Captain of American Freighter Reports 'All Hands Saved'

New York—(P)—Twenty persons, including two women, were rescued from the disabled Norwegian freighter Smaragd in the galeswept Atlantic 600 miles southeast of New York today by the American freighter Schodack.

Wireless reports to Radio Marine Corporation said the rescue was completed at 9:48 a. m. C. S. T. following a night of anxiety during which the Schodack stood by waiting for a lull in the weather.

A message from Captain Clifford Smith of the Schodack said: "All hands, including skipper of Smaragd, safely taken from disabled vessel."

The Smaragd, out of Norfolk for Fort William, Scotland, laden with oil in cases, sprang a leak and called for help. The Schodack, carrying general cargo between north Atlantic ports and France, immediately went to her aid.

Vessel Still Afloat
After standing by during the night, Captain Smith reported at 5:33 a. m.

"Now preparing to get S. S. Smaragd with boat. Smaragd still afloat at daylight is breaking. Smaragd has two women aboard."

The next news received was at 8:50 a. m. when Skipper Smith reported that seven persons had been transferred safely from the Smaragd to the Schodack and that preparations were underway for removal of the others.

The Smaragd was leaking badly forward and listing, he said. Northwest gales were blowing, making rescue attempts difficult.

The Smaragd, a vessel of 1,181 gross tons, was built in 1911. She is 225 feet long and once was named the Elizabeth Cuneo.

Her home port is Haugesund, Norway, and her owner A. S. Trvæg. The Schodack has a crew of 40.

Pleads Guilty of Drunken Driving

Little Chute Man Fined In Municipal Court This Morning

Herman Janssen, 35, Little Chute, pleaded guilty of drunken driving and falling to stop after an accident when arraigned in municipal court of Judge Thomas H. Ryan this morning.

The motorist was fined $50 and costs under both the county and state laws on the drunken driving charge and $5 and costs on the charge of failing to stop after an accident. The state fine was remitted when Janssen promised to take a pledge for a year. His driving license was revoked for a year. The fines and costs amount to $70.40.

Janssen was going south on old Highway 41, made a left turn and collided with a car being driven north by Mark Van Lieshout, 110 Dolly street, Kaukauna, in Little Chute. The Van Lieshout car was slightly damaged.

Merry Christmas Asks Santa Claus for Doll

Superior—(P)—Merry Christmas, 6, and her sister, Carol, 4, reported to Santa Claus—through their parents Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Christmas of Superior—that they had been "very good girls" and wanted dolls for Christmas this year.

Then, Case said: "I fired without saying a word."

"I fired once and then shot a second time. As I was reloading the gun I heard the auto horn blow. I fired another shot at the car's headlights."

One of Case's granddaughters told more about his Christmas tree difficulties.

"Every year grandpa's had trouble with people taking Christmas trees. They'd drive trucks in and take trees out by the truck load. This morning he happened to catch somebody, but they weren't people who took truckloads. They just wanted two trees, I guess."

Roosevelt Names Harry Hopkins to Cabinet Position

Baskets Go Out to Poor but Good Fellows Fund Is $140

Short of Amount Required

One more day and the Good Fellows' appeal for Christmas baskets will be finished for this year. Whether the goal of $600 will be reached depends upon the generosity of Good Fellows tomorrow.

There will have to be many more contributors than there were today if the total is to be boosted to $600. At 1 o'clock today the total was $461.95, an increase of $85.50 over yesterday's total.

A large number of baskets were distributed last night, and many more are going out today, tonight and tomorrow. Just how many families will be taken care will not be known until Saturday, and the number depends upon the amount of money available.

Those men who assisted in distributing baskets last night have a better understanding today of why Good Fellows are asked to contribute. They have actually seen how happy they are to receive this help at Christmas time. They have learned that a basket of food, some warm clothing, perhaps some toys and candy for the children, is mighty welcome to people who are forced to live in garages and trailers and basements because they can't afford anything better.

It is too bad that a lot more people don't have the experience of the men who distributed the baskets, or of the men and women who investigated the families, or who are constantly working with them. And there always is work, because they are hungry all year round, not only at Christmas time, and they must be fed and clothed in January as well as in December.

Governmental agencies are doing all they can to help the unfortunate but the best these agencies can do is only scratching the surface. The money available for relief is just enough to keep the needy alive. Every cent has to be conserved, and every car is taken to see to it that no family gets more than just necessary to keep it going. If more is spent for any one family it would mean that some

Finds Commission Acted Illegally in Acquisition Case

Madison—(P)—Circuit Judge Sherman E. Smalley ruled today that the public service commission acted illegally last January when it re-opened the Superior utility acquisition case and lowered the price the city should pay for the property of the Superior Water, Light and Power company.

The utility filed a complaint with circuit court against reopening of the proceedings and the commission demurred to the complaint.

Judge Smalley, who heard the case here by assignment, today overruled the demurrer, which officials said, in effect, reinstates the commission's first order fixing the purchase at $4,625,000, but which is involved in an appeal.

The subsequent valuation, which Judge Smalley threw out, was $4,050,000.

After the original order for $4,625,000 was entered on Aug. 13, 1937, a member of the Superior city council appealed to the Dane county circuit court for a review.

The appeal was pending when the commission reopened the case on Jan. 26, 1938.

The commission had no authority to reconsider the valuation order "for any purpose" while the appeal was pending, Judge Smalley said.

Defendants Win Delay In Milk Trust Action

Chicago—(P)—Attorneys for five of the fifty-seven defendants under indictments in the governments' anti-trust case against the milk industry won from the federal court today more leeway in filing preliminary motions.

Last Dec. 8 Judge Charles E. Woodward directed that all motions attacking the indictment be filed with the court by Jan. 7.

Counsel asked the court today to clarify a "possible mistaken interpretation of the order," stating they did not want to be precluded from filing subsequent motions if their first ones were overruled.

Judge Woodward agreed to modify the order so that motions which must be filed by Jan. 7 were limited to "motions, demurrers or pleas in abatement."

Compromise Reached At Lima Conference

Washington—(P)—Secretary Hull informed the state department today from Lima, Peru, that the American delegation there understood that an agreement finally had been reached on a compromise resolution dealing with western hemisphere solidarity and defense.

This question virtually deadlocked the conference for a week.

Hull said the resolution would be presented to a plenary session of the Pan-American conference today for formal approval.

WPA Head to Succeed Roper as Commerce Secretary

OTHER CHANGES

Harrington Acting WPA Chief, Williams Gets NYA Office

Washington—(P)—President Roosevelt named Harry L. Hopkins to succeed Daniel C. Roper as secretary of commerce.

Stephen Early, a presidential secretary, announced the appointment and said Hopkins would be sworn in, in President Roosevelt's White House study, tomorrow.

At the same time the president designated F. C. Harrington to succeed Hopkins as works progress administrator.

Aubrey Williams, deputy WPA administrator, will become national youth administrator. Williams now is executive director of NYA, a part of WPA.

Only a few friends of Hopkins will be present at the ceremony at which he takes his new office tomorrow. He still must be confirmed by the senate, however.

There were rumblings of opposition to this confirmation even before his appointment was announced.

Draws Army Pay
Early said he did not believe senate confirmation would be required for Harrington, and he drew distinction between his "designation" and a formal appointment.

Harrington is an army officer, and will head WPA on detail from the army. He will draw his regular army pay and receive no remuneration from WPA, the White House said.

While Hopkins' appointment takes care of one of the two impending cabinet vacancies, the White House did not disclose when the appointment of a successor to Attorney General Cummings might be expected.

Roper's resignation as commerce secretary is effective today. Cummings resigned, effective some time in January. A definite date has not been announced for Cummings to leave the cabinet.

The White House disclosed it had been hoped that Williams could be made head of the youth administration as a separate governmental agency but that the law creating NYA made it part of the works progress administration.

May Quit WPA Post
Some White House officials indicated Williams probably would resign as deputy WPA administrator.

Hopkins has been drawing $10,000 a year as WPA administrator. As commerce secretary he will get a 50 per cent pay raise—$5,000.

White House officials said Harrington would be unable to accept the difference between his army pay and the $10,000 salary of the WPA administrator unless he resigned from the army.

The appointment brings to the commerce department a lean, lantern-jawed man of 48, whose labors and driving energy have made him an outstanding member of the inner circle of the New Deal.

It does not bring to the top desk of the department—whose function it is to provide a liaison between government and business—a man who, by experience, is versed in the ways of business. This fact may be much discussed by senate

Legislator Demands Probe of Executive Acts in Bay State

Boston—(P)—Asserting "things have been going on in the executive corner during the past three months that are a disgrace to the good name of Massachusetts," a veteran Democratic legislator moved today for investigation of all acts of the executive branch of the state government since primary day, Sept. 20.

Described as a "public enemy" by Providence police, Patriarca has a long record, including imprisonment in Rhode Island and in the federal penitentiary at Atlanta.

Loyalists' Front Broken, Fascist Report Declares

Insurgents Launch New Offensive in Spanish Conflict

Zaragoza, Spain.—The insurgent high command announced today that the government's front in Catalonia, northeastern Spain, had been broken in four places by the first onslaughts of a new insurgent offensive.

For a month reports from both sides in the Spanish civil war have described insurgent preparations for a major offensive by which it was said Generalissimo Francisco Franco hoped to end the war, now in its thirtieth month.

But the drive has been delayed, partly because of the officially confirmed leakage of Franco's military plans to the Barcelona government and a resultant widespread spy hunt in insurgent Spain and partly because of bad weather.

Dispatches reaching Bourg-Madame, France, on the Spanish frontier, today said Franco's Moroccans had launched six separate attacks in falling snow and near-zero weather against government lines along the Segre river near Tremp but that all had been thrown back.

The points where the government front was broken were not divulged.

Still Advancing
Franco's forces ignored cold and heavy snow to launch the offensive in a mountainous area about 60 miles from the government capital. Commanders said that in the sector where the attacks were centered, the government for weeks had been building a long line of steel and concrete fortifications running south beyond Tarragona.

Having arrested 50 persons suspected of conspiring to betray military secrets to the government, the insurgent intelligence service delved further into activities of an alleged spy ring.

Officials, attempting to fix responsibility quickly and stop what they charged was an organized traffic in war secrets throughout France to government Spain, probably will take suspects before military courts for trial.

Widespread reports of unrest behind insurgent lines was denied officially. They were attributed to the seizure at Irun of a British official bag containing documents intended to disclose to the government plans for an insurgent offensive.

The Economic Problem Here and Over There

One of the reasons why it is so difficult to act intelligently in economic matters is that it is so difficult to think clearly about them. And perhaps the chief reason why thinking is difficult is that we are forever comparing our position with that of other countries, though the words we use—such as depression, recovery, inflation and the like—have such different meanings in different countries.

It is often said by returning tourists, for example, that there is "no unemployment" in Russia, Germany and Italy, and these statements are supposed to put us to shame. For are we not supposed to have ten or twelve million "unemployed"? Yet the essential fact of the matter is that the term "unemployed" means one thing here in America and a totally different thing over there in the totalitarian countries.

Here a person is regarded as unemployed if he or she does not have a job at private wages or on the regular government pay rolls. The millions who are on the WPA and CCC are counted as unemployed. But in the totalitarian states a man is "employed" if he is at work, be it in the army, in a labor battalion or in a Siberian camp where he works at forced labor. When we speak of "the unemployed" we really mean those who are not employed by private enterprise. But when they speak of the unemployed they mean those who have nothing to do. And, consequently, what we consider a grave defect in our social order, that the government provides work for so many persons, appears over there as a triumph of the government that puts so many persons to work.

This vital difference in the definition of the term "unemployed" goes back, of course, to a profound difference in social philosophy. In a totalitarian state the activity of government is regarded as normal and preponderant. The exceptional and abnormal thing is private enterprise and private employment. In Russia, for example, the state is in theory supposed to be the only employer of labor; whenever exceptions are made to this rule, as for a few years under Lenin's so-called new economic policy, the exceptions are regarded as we regard the W. P. A. as abnormal and temporary and in principle undesirable. In Germany and Italy the normal rule is that all property and all labor are in the service of the government, and private enterprise and employment are tolerated only in so far as they suit the needs and purposes of the government.

A totalitarian state maintains private business as a farmer maintains his cattle, as something to be milked and, if needed, to be slaughtered. We, on the other hand, look upon private property and private enterprise and private employment as the normal and the desirable, and upon government as a necessary evil which the private citizen supports. And this great difference in outlook is reflected in the economic policies of the two systems.

Youths Took Turns Striking Watchman on Head With Pipe

Chicago.—(AP)—Three 17-year-old Negro youths were held in jail today after confessing, Assistant State's Attorney David Leeds said, the slaying early yesterday of Zuave Polin, 38-year-old watchman during a robbery at the Liberty Bottling company.

Leeds said the youths included Robert Walton, who was employed at the plant where Polin was a watchman. He was seized yesterday, less than 12 hours after Polin was beaten to death. Police later arrested Robert Shannon and McClellan Royster.

Leeds said the three admitted attacking Polin while he was making his rounds at the plant and after knocking him unconscious they tied his hands and feet and took turns striking him on the head with a lead pipe.

Captain Frank Malone said the three prisoners intended to steal receipts from the safes that are built in the delivery trucks of the concern. He said they stole keys from the office to unlock safes in two trucks and took $92 and drove out a truck with a safe containing $450. The truck was found near Walton's home, the safe unopened.

Charge Wisconsin Paper Makers Hurt By Freight Rates

State Official Asks Federal Commission to Order Hearing

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
Madison.—Philip H. Porter, general counsel for the Wisconsin public service commission, today filed a petition with the interstate commerce commission holding that the proposed increases in freight rates on Wisconsin paper and paper products to southwestern United States points is illegal and demanding a hearing before such rates are approved.

Railroads have filed increases ranging from 1 to 20 cents per 100 pounds to become effective on January 1. Porter has demanded an investigation of the tariff schedules now in effect, and a suspension of the new rates until hearings can be held and a decision rendered.

Porter's petition says that Wisconsin paper mills consider the southwest one of their best markets, and that they are in keen competition with rivals in the west and east although the proposed increases in rates do not affect those competitors.

The present rates, he said, are those prescribed by the federal commission after a "thorough and comprehensive investigation in the Minnesota and Ontario Paper case." These rates apply from Wisconsin points of origin in two groups:

The so-called Fox River group includes all mills located on or east of the Wisconsin river as far north as Merrill and Marinette.

Mills to the north and west of the Fox River group are included in the second group.

While in some instances the new rates are the same as the present, Porter said, in most cases substantial increases would result.

On group A paper (newsprint and wallpaper) from the Fox River group to Little Rock, Arkansas, the rate would be increased from 53 cents to 75 cents; to Fort Smith, Arkansas, from 57 cents to 62 cents.

On group B (printing and wrapping) the corresponding increases proposed to Little Rock are from 50 cents to 63 cents; to Fort Smith from 62 cents to 67 cents.

On group C (toilet, paper napkins, towels, etc.) to Little Rock from 71 cents to 80 cents; to Fort Smith from 75 cents to 88 cents.

Increases roughly similar would result to the northern Wisconsin group, it was said.

On wallboard and pulpboard the proposed increases are illustrated as follows:

From Neenah to Little Rock from 53 cents to 63 cents; to Shreveport, La., from 59 cents to 74 cents; to Oklahoma City from 62 cents to 70 cents.

On pulpboard from Wisconsin Dam to Little Rock the present rate of 54 cents would remain the same; to Shreveport an increase from 67 cents to 75 cents is proposed.

Moreover, Porter advised the federal authorities, a source of competition for the paper making industry is beginning to become evident in the southwest itself and in the lower Mississippi valley.

"Increases in rates from Wisconsin are especially serious because of this local production.

Deputies Agree That The 'Show Must Go On'

Milwaukee.—(AP)—Deputy Sheriffs Eugene Netz and George Hanlon, investigating a burglary, got on the trail of a small boy yesterday.

They went to his school and found a Christmas play in progress. They went backstage and located the teacher. She said: "You can't talk to Johnny now."

"Why can't we?" The teacher pointed on the stage and said: "Because he's Santa Claus."

The deputies agreed that the play must go on.

State Employees Want Repeal Of Law Exempting Their Income

(Post-Crescent Madison Bureau)
Madison, Wis.—Roy E. Kubista, executive secretary of the Wisconsin State Employees union, today paused in the work of drafting legislation which state government employees want the new administration to adopt to make a public declaration that all governmental employees should be taxed to support the government which employs them.

Kubista's statement said that governmental employees should be taxed on the same basis as any other citizens.

At present state employees are exempt from payment of a federal income tax, while employees in turn escape the state income levies.

Kubista asserted that existing laws which exempt state employees from paying federal income taxes should be repealed.

The union which Kubista heads expects to win concessions from the new state legislature, including a general pension program and a maximum work week of 44 hours as the leading items.

The union's leader said that tax-exempt securities should also be abolished because "it is certainly clear that no government—federal, state or local—can afford to place permanently outside the taxing power millions of its citizens and billions invested in securities."

"No single factor in our economic life is of more importance to the public employee than a sound tax system," he said.

Exemption of public employees from the taxes which their neighbors working in private enterprise must pay "has put public employment in a preferred class from the taxpayers' point of view which has resulted in confusion and misunderstanding," he said.

If recent federal supreme court decisions are not sufficient to decide the question, Kubista said that he will favor direct legislation or a constitutional amendment to prevent the exemption of public servants from taxes.

The recent supreme court decision in the New York Port authority case made a "dent" in the practice, he added. That decision upheld a federal income tax levied on employees of the authority, a bi-state corporation.

Samuel Insull, Jr., Leaves $50,000 Post

Chicago.—(AP)—Samuel Insull, Jr., is leaving a $50,000 a year job to accept "a very good business opportunity."

He announced yesterday his resignation as assistant to the chairman of the Commonwealth Edison company.

"I have made arrangements to accept, early in January, what I consider a very good business opportunity," Insull said, adding he would divulge his new job next month.

Insull has been affiliated with utilities since 1921. He occupied important posts in the utility structure erected by his father before the latter's financial collapse in 1932. The senior Insull died in Paris last July.

Corcoran said these reductions, usually about 40 per cent less than the day rates, are generally applicable where the regular day station-to-station long distance rate is 40 cents or more.

State Production Of Alfalfa Ranks With U. S. Leaders

Wisconsin's Record This Year Is Over Million Acres

From a minor crop only two decades ago, alfalfa has increased rapidly in the state and this year estimates show that Wisconsin farmers harvested the second largest alfalfa crop in the nation, according to a bulletin received by P. C. Swanson, county agricultural agent, from the crop reporting service.

Twenty years ago estimates show that there were only 70,000 acres of alfalfa in the state and the production was about 158,000 tons. This year over one million acres of alfalfa were reported for the state and present estimates of the crop reporting service show that Wisconsin's alfalfa production this year is over 2,800,000 tons, which is the all-time high for the state.

Tame hay is the state's largest crop and this year about 40 per cent of the entire hay crop was alfalfa.

Because of its high yields and the greater value of alfalfa hay for the feeding of dairy cattle, efforts to expand the acreage continue. Alfalfa has come through the series of drought years much better than clover and timothy which declined during this period while the alfalfa acreage increased.

Although there are some areas where alfalfa originally was planted without the soil being limed, farmers in the state have found the crop of sufficient value to lime their land and raise alfalfa where it would otherwise not have grown well.

While the crop tends to follow the soil types of limestone origin, it also is found in areas where dairying is carried on most intensively. Continued efforts to grow the crop by liming the soil are being made by Wisconsin farmers, and it is probable that production of alfalfa will continue to increase.

What were the agricultural adjustments payments in Wisconsin. How much is the state's annual precipitation? What's the trend of farm prices and purchasing power? How many farms have bathtubs, running water, electricity, radios? These and hundreds of other questions on livestock, crops, dairy products, poultry, machinery, land

Bohstedt Lists Economical Buys In Protein Feeds

Corn Gluten and Soybean Oil Meals are Recommended

Outagamie county dairymen who are asking what protein supplements will give them most for their money these days, will likely find the answer in corn gluten meal and soybean oil meal.

These are the protein feeds which Gus Bohstedt, state animal nutritionist at the Wisconsin College of Agriculture has found most economical to buy right now when cottonseed meal is somewhat higher priced and linseed meal relatively expensive.

On dairy farms where oats and barley make up the greater part of the dairy ration, he finds that corn gluten meal fits in well as a protein supplement. But if corn or corn-cob meal are used to a great extent in the dairy ration, it is better to use soybean oil meal rather than corn gluten meal as a protein supplement. Corn proteins have certain deficiencies which can be pretty well overcome only if the corn or corn by-product is fed along with other grains such as barley, oats, or bran.

Soybean oil meal, according to this authority, probably comes closest to linseed meal as a protein supplement for growing, fattening cattle. Soybean oil meal also makes an excellent source for part of the protein in the hog ration, particularly when the meal has been well cooked and has acquired a slightly brown color during the milling process, Bohstedt says.

Corn gluten meal, however, is not desirable for hogs because it is not very palatable and does not balance the protein in the corn which ordinarily makes up a large part of the hog ration.

Forest Cooperative Organized at Niles

A forest products cooperative in Forest county, one of the first of its kind in the state, has been organized at Niles, according to W. L. Witte, marketing division head of the state department of agriculture and markets, in a bulletin received by R. C. Swanson, county agricultural agent.

For several years farmers in that vicinity have been cutting small amounts of timber for railroad ties, lumber, fence posts, fuel and other uses. Individual efforts convinced them that it might be more profitable to organize, pool their products and expand the markets.

MR. HEIL AND THE BUDGET

The opposition to Mr. Heil's budget methods and manners took on something of a shrill, hysterical note last week when a young man at the University wrote a letter to a student publication terming the statements made by Mr. Heil as "ballyhoo" and referring to the Governor-elect himself as something on the idiotic order.

Irrespective of political party or opinion, Mr. Heil actually has an obligation of honor to the people of Wisconsin. He campaigned diligently upon the proposition that the state government had been wasteful and extravagant. He threw down the gauntlet of expense as an issue in the campaign and the challenge was accepted by the opposition which contended with figures and argument that expenditures and commitments were moderate and reasonable.

In electing Mr. Heil no one can deny that the people of the state have spoken with most emphatic decision judged alone by the size of the majority given him. As he faces, therefore, the demands of various departments of the government for a total of 96 millions to be spent in the next two years the question is whether he will keep his word or break it. It is just about as simple as that.

No longer is the matter open for debate. The verdict upon this question was rendered as emphatically by the people as the means in their hands could be employed to convey a decision.

Unless we are to follow a course of almost complete dishonor in our public life it is incumbent upon Mr. Heil to cut state expenses and to cut them millions of dollars. In this process he, of course, has a wide range of discretion. He may find it convenient or expedient to cut some departments, leave others alone, and even increase the amounts allotted to still others, but he is under a bounded duty to reduce the total expenditures and to reduce them substantially.

We know of no more distressing fact in American public life than the instances where men have said almost anything to win an election and then chuck their promises into a gutter drain.

COMPULSORY MILITARY TRAINING

The Post-Crescent used to wonder what was the matter with the legislature when bills before it requiring young men for a limited time at the university to take some military training failed of passing usually because of Socialist shoutings that we were all arming for battle and just looking for a chance to go to war.

But now the Gallup poll has indicated that public opinion in this country, and all over it, favors making "military training part of the duties of the boys in the CCC camps." In fact the vote is 3 to 1, a heavy majority.

At the same time the survey indicates that the people of this country are not in favor of compulsory military service such as required in European nations where all young men must spend about two years in the unformed forces.

Here is as fine and intelligent a distinction as could be made. The American does not want the compulsion of this training at every day fare. He does want it as part of the life of young men into whose careers it may be mixed decently with their other obligations.

And so it is that the distinction thus made creates a pretty good sized mixture of alert warfulness for the American knows now very well that men trained in military maneuvers and science are very valuable parts of the community during those grave days of a nation when it is forced to war.

If the boys in the CCC camps should take military training—or putting it more properly—be given that great privilege, what shall be said of those walking the marbled halls of our university, nurtured at the expense of the state, helped and guided along pathways that bring them much better remuneration during life—should they be denied the same opportunity of training just because at the mention of a gun we have some citizens whose legs become as of rubber and shake with a palsy, or because the boys themselves need the prod of compulsion?

MEXICO'S PECULIAR INFLUENCE

There is one way in which our government is following scriptural direction. It never lets its right hand know what its left hand is doing.

Down in Peru Mr. Hull has shouldered the heavy effort of improving Pan-American relations. But our affairs have been so conducted in Mexico that even as Mr. Hull sleeps at Lima the Mexican government enters into an agreement to deliver the oil taken from stolen American wells to Germany in exchange for German merchandise and manufactures.

The mere loss of this business, the stripping of the wealth of our people is not enough. We oppose the Nazi trade methods and the Nazi ideology in business for the same reason that we oppose the Nazi system of government. We favor in business as in government elbow room for all, freedom of choice, but no dirty work. But we allow Mexico to strip our people of their wealth in order to provide that country with a substantial Nazi infiltration of men and methods. For Mexico merely picked up the Nazi method of plain thievery. Anyone can provide an excuse. There is no factory so easy to construct as that which turns out alibis.

The New York Reds, over whom the Roosevelt administration shows such fatherly interest, praise Cardenas to the sky. Perhaps on account of the New York Reds, and fearful of hurting their feelings, the President has pulled his punches in the Mexican affair. But why should the President and his New York friends detest Herr Hitler so bitterly while Cardenas has his arm around the German's shoulder, is helping very materially to make Hitler's regime a success and by that same gesture hurting American manufacturers and throwing American workers out of employment?

These peculiar relations of Mr. Roosevelt with Mexico are as unexplainable as the companionship between some high-hatted dignified boulevardier and a dirty-faced, grimy cutthroat who takes to some rathole as refuge.

Meanwhile we continue purchasing silver in Mexico at artificially high prices and we pay Mexico's heavy export duty, and thus we help to sustain the crazy financial structure upon which Mexico rests and which is no more rotten than it is dishonest.

The American people think they see in the Peruvian adventure a sensible effort by Washington to strengthen democracy in this Western Hemisphere. Peru is likely a fine example of the theory of the thing. Mexico is the theory put to practice which shows that the theory isn't worth a wormy peanut unless we have at Washington a government that is reasonably firm and resolute in doing something besides borrowing money and wasting America's heritage.

THE CONVENIENCE OF A BLANK MIND

Over in Michigan a jury found a certain "office wife" guilty of such a degree of homicide as brought her a 15 year sentence where it seemed she expected acquittal amid cheers.

Realizing full well that nothing could be more precarious than for one who did not participate in the trial or attend the flow of evidence from start to finish to substitute an opinion for a jury's verdict simply because decisions depend upon a variety of factors that cannot be printed in newspapers nor even adequately described, it is yet a matter of public satisfaction to realize that when a life has been sacrificed the person who had pumped the gun cannot expect freedom unless justice manifestly calls for that verdict.

In this Michigan case some sympathy was unavoidable for the accused but her wantonness was apparent in the studied effort with which she announced her mind had gone completely blank just as the gun started spitting death. In no other way was it possible for her to avoid those paralyzing questions as to why she shot a man in the back and then continued to pour lead through his head.

Her retreat into the cushioned precincts of forgetfulness was in fact a loud concession that no fitting answers could be made to the natural questions sure to arise from the physical facts in the case.

It is an indication of a virile civilization when juries, that is the people, take to heart very soberly the existence of that premature mound in the cemetery and scan with grim skepticism the excuses of the survivors who are so prone to pile upon the one whose lips they have silenced forever every sort of blame and contumely.

UNITED AGAIN

In this particular story the mother is Mrs. Lillian Petruska. She is 19. Her baby is Michael and he is 3. But the names might be interchanged hundreds of times and the story would not be altered in one essential particular, except that some versions might be even more heart-breaking.

The mother and child came from Cleveland a month ago. She left him with kindly strangers, went looking for a job, found none but kept plodding along in the search. Meanwhile the baby was turned over to the police, and his picture was published in the World-Telegram last Friday as an appeal for the mother because he was crying for her. A beautiful baby he was, too. Well, Mrs. Petruska didn't have 3 cents for a paper and missed the picture, but the police found her and she and the baby are united again. And money is coming to take them back home to Cleveland.

So the city wasn't so hard-hearted. It did what it could to care for baby, even though it had no jobs for the mother. They looked for a better life and found it tougher going than at home—tough but well-meaning New York! It is one of the classic story patterns. Both of them are so young—19 and 3—surely there ought to be happiness for them yet.—New York World-Telegram.

Miami, Fla., reported business around December 1, 1938, showed a 103 per cent gain over the same period of 1937.

The Virgin Islands, owned partly by the United States and partly by Great Britain, are about 100 in number, most of them uninhabited.

DALE HARRISON'S In Old New York

New York—Mr. Sherman Billingsley, the night club impresario, and I, having a pencil and a piece of paper before us and nothing much to do, did some amateur calculating last night and came to some astounding conclusions.

We had been talking about the gorgeous raiment in which the patrons of his and other of the more elegant night places garb themselves. Before us, as we sat facing the entrance, paraded fox furs, mink, and all sorts of costly clothing on the backs of the ladies.

I said to him: "All these clothes are costing somebody plenty of money. I'll wager that a small fortune is represented in the garments that pass through these portals."

Sherman began figuring with the pencil. Pretty soon he said: "At a rough guess, an investment of $300,000 is represented in the clothes that are worn here every day."

In reaching this estimate, Billingsley calculated the average daily number of persons served in his club (the Stork) as 2,000. This included men as well as women, a fact that cut down the average cost of clothes per patron inasmuch as the male does not wear as fine feathers as the female.

An average of $150 per person for clothes sounded fairly conservative to me. Billingsley, enthused by adventure into figuring, went on to multiply by 365 days in the year to reach the outlandish total of $109,500,000 as the cost of clothes worn into his club during a twelve-month.

At this point in the mathematical marathon, the figures having gone far too high for me to comprehend, I suggested he could not multiply by 365 on account of the fact that the same clothes often were worn on subsequent days, especially the costly fur coats and evening wraps. I said that we should take the $300,000 per day figure as honest and conservative, and let it go at that. I said that if men, who probably had to pay for all the clothes, saw such a figure as $109,500,000 they would be incensed.

Mr. Billingsley said he didn't know what the cost of the most expensive garment ever worn into the club might be, as he is the type of proprietor who does not go round among the customers remarking: "That is certainly a nice piece of skunk, princess." We agreed that many a $25,000 coat had swished its perfumed way down the aisle along the bar, and that hats costing hundreds of dollars were frequent. I happened to know (through my intricate system of spies and stuff) that a young lady at one table was wearing a hat and muff to match that set her papa back a cool $1,500.

All of this is probably very significant, and I would like nothing better than to conjecture about its effect upon our Social Structure; but I cannot, on account of a reader recently asked me politely not to philosophize so much in my writings. I trust the rest of you will understand.

Words and Musing: The home of Daniel M. Eisenberg was robbed the other night. During the last 15 years Mr. Eisenberg, as head of a private detective agency, has located more than 162,000 persons, but he hasn't the slightest idea who robbed him or where the rascal is. The thief took several articles but for some reason didn't take the manuscript of the book Eisenberg recently wrote—a book entitled: "I Find the Missing."

Bill Hardy, a collector of various things, including ancient vaudivellens, acquired several mirrors from the old Rockefeller home. Pressed for storeroom space, he had the mirrors placed on the roof of the building on East 55th street where he operates his Gay Nineties restaurant. Recently the third floor of the building was remodeled, and the remodelers absent-mindedly closed the entrance leading to the roof. The last I heard was that the Rockefeller mirrors—in which no doubt some of the richest faces in the world have been reflected—were still on the roof, biding their time until the perplexed Mr. Hardy figures out how to get them down.

10 YEARS AGO
Friday, Dec. 21, 1928

President Coolidge that day signed the Boulder dam bill, making effective the act providing for a reclamation, flood control and power project on the Colorado river.

Herb Heilig, director of the Appleton Vocational school, returned Thursday from Philadelphia after attending a conference of the American Vocational association.

W. H. Zuehlke and Albert Voelckers were re-elected treasurer and secretary, respectively, at the annual meeting of directors of the Aid Association for Lutherans at the Insurance building the previous day. Two trustees reelected were J. F. Schoettler, Appleton, and E. R. Schneider, Fremont.

The cement reinforced 150-foot chimney at the Bergstrom Paper company plant had been torn down. A new tile chimney, 180 feet high, was to take the place of the old one and was part of the new equipment which the mill was to install.

25 YEARS AGO
Friday, Dec. 26, 1913

Christmas was a day of cheer for Appleton with no Christmas tree fires to mar the day. The day brought to a close what was considered by local merchants one of the busiest shopping seasons in many years.

Articles of incorporation for the Print Motor Car company of Appleton were filed with the secretary of state the previous day at Madison. Incorporators were S. C. Shannon, Herman F. Hecker and L. D. Frink.

The collection of taxes was to begin the following Monday. The total tax roll, including $62,260.53 income tax, amounted to $466,533.58. The previous year the total roll was $407,000.

Carl Gerlach and Erwin Jacoby were to leave for New York that night where the former was to act as a salesman for the George Borgfeldt company and the latter was to work for a tobacco company.

CHRISTMAS CANDLE

The candle in my window
Shines with a feeble light,
And yet I see it gleaming;
It guides my dimming sight.

The high windows of heaven
Are open where you are,
And God has set a candle
For you—a constant star.

I see it from my doorway
Our first Christmas apart,
Its light, so pure, so golden
Sheds in my lonely heart

A little of the glory
That happy youths pursue
When in their early evening
The stars are bright and new.

Now I must face the future
With all my weeping done . . .
On heaven I light a candle;
In heaven, God lights one.

A Bystander In Washington

BY PRESTON GROVER

Washington—King George and Queen Mary will move into the White House next summer to find almost a complete absence of anything British except a recollection that his majesty's soldiers once burned the place down.

Grover

Other foreign touches mostly are French and Belgian.

Probably it is no ill omen, but the last reigning monarch who visited the place, King Prajadibok of Siam, no longer is on the throne. He came in 1931 as a guest of President Hoover. Hoover lost his job too.

There aren't any historic ghosts in the White House no records of bloody plots such as distinguish British castles. But the White House is a distinguished place none the less, although a bit crowded even for a democratic king.

There are seven bedroom suites in the upstairs floor, which traditionally is the family quarters. Present plans are for the king to occupy an east end suite containing the nine-foot Lincoln four-poster bed, which probably creaks. The place overlooks the treasury, also a matter of some interest to the British.

Might Crowd Things Up

Goodness knows what would happen if the Roosevelt clan decided to come home for a family visit right at the moment. Doubtless Mrs. Roosevelt would make everybody comfortable, even if it meant a bit of doubling up. She has a friendly touch, and if King George VI feels a bit strange in a place where people speak English with a funny American accent, he probably will be made right at home soon enough.

It is a fact that stories about the place are coming as often as dignified. Abigail Adams, first of the line of first ladies, almost froze what with the wet walls and incomplete fixtures. She hung the wash in the gorgeous imperial East Room now all gilt and white, with shimmering chandeliers.

In the East Room hangs the Washington painting, saved from British soldiers by Dolly Madison. A group of busts of early Presidents came from the French. In 1860 President Buchanan received the first Japanese embassy to the United States in the famed room, as well as the Prince of Wales, later Edward VII. Theodore Roosevelt used it for practicing Jiu Jitsu with a Japanese coach.

Jeffersonian informality once offended the British minister. His wife was left unattended to find her way alone into a state dinner. Probably the FDR's will break that Jeffersonian tradition. The wild and woolly Jackson receptions still are a sort of annoyance for Democrats to remember, especially the one when a 1,400 pound New York cheese was hacked up in a hungry frolic much of it being smeared on the walls.

Democrats like better to recall that Jackson locked himself up in an attic room in the White House to nurse a coachman whose smallpox had stamped the servants.

Dolly Generous

Lavish Dolly Madison had one servant behind each dinner guest's chair but the Roosevelts have only one servant to each four.

Things could really be worse for their imperial majesties. As late as 1841 President William Henry Harrison used to go to market with a basket on his arm. Not until 1877 were bathrooms installed. President Hayes also installed one telephone. Gas lights replaced candles in 1848, and 40 years later came electricity.

One thing is certain to convince the king and queen they are in a foreign land. There isn't a suit of antique armor in the whole place.

2. What is Meme! What group has political control there?

3. Have German exports to South America been (a) halved, (b) doubled or (c) quadrupled since Hitler came to power?

4. How did cotton growers vote on government marketing control? Rice growers?

5. Who said: "If . . . we hold fast to our faith, cradle it in stone and set steel to defend it, we can yet hand on our inheritance of freedom?"

HEART FAILURE

Most victims of heart failure do not succumb to it and those who do generally take years and years to die.

I am thinking of real heart failure—weakness or impairment of the structure or function of the heart which renders the organ less efficient or capable of pumping the amount of blood required to support the body in the style to which it is accustomed. What you think of when you hear the term "heart failure" is probably something dreadful and beyond ordinary comprehension. But that's because you take too seriously the fiction you read every day. It is too bad so much of it is fed to you, but I don't know how it can be helped now. While I was young and not averse to a little tussle now and then I entered upon a quixotic campaign to reform reporters and editors, but when I had encountered a few windmills I fell back and decided I had better believe myself—had plenty of time to think about it, too, after they had printed a few truthful lies in the way I believed the story should be told.

Of course there is acute heart failure—acute dilation and chronic heart failure—chronic dilation, or chronic degeneration of the heart muscle, chronic myocarditis, fatty degeneration. Acute dilation of the heart means that the one or more chambers of the heart become stretched, overfilled with blood, fail to empty completely during heart-beat, contraction, systole. This is a normal occurrence during any unusual or violent exertion, particularly the right ventricle which pumps blood to the lungs. With rest, following the effort, the heart recovers, provides the effort or strain has not been too great or the state of the heart to begin with has not been defective. Sometimes in these circumstances the heart suffers a strain from which it recovers slowly, or never completely at all, so that the victim may be thereafter unable to undertake any severe exertion or endure any physical strain.

Something like that happens to a good many schoolboys who play football. In their "teens boys are poorly equipped to attempt the severe endurance contests which men of university age may safely withstand. High school football is a travesty, an exploitation of the precocity of undisciplined youth by the professional sport element. It is in the schools, shame to say, but not of them. At least the qualified physical education instructors are thrust aside and the quack "coach" without any particular training or authorization takes charge of the youngsters who are so susceptible as to go in for the "team."

An athlete who is in full training may safely maintain a degree of exertion which would be impossible or dangerous if he were not carefully trained. This is the crux of the question. High school boys can scarcely get into full training in the space of a few weeks, even if it would be advisable for boys of that age to try.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Modern Method

I notice you sometimes refer to injection treatment of henna as "modern." Are you not aware that irregulars have been using injection treatment for almost a century . . . if you can name any good medical authority or a textbook describing this method. . . . (W. A., M. D.)

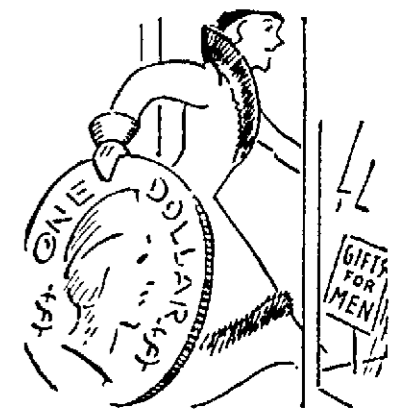

Answer—An excellent textbook on hernia, by Dr. Leigh F. Watson, published by Mosby, St. Louis, 1938, describes several chapters to the method. The Jour. A.M.A., in a review of Dr. Watson's work, said:

"CAPRICORN"

If December 24 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 11:15 a. m. to 1:15 p. m.; from 4:15 to 6:15 p. m., and from 8:15 to 10:15 p. m. The danger periods are from 9:15 to 11:15 a. m.; from 6:15 to 8:15 p. m., and from 10:15 p. m. until midnight.

Your words and actions this day may have an important bearing on tomorrow, making Christmas Day a very merry one or just the reverse. It will be wise for you to control your temper and tongue. Let the spirit of Christmas animate your thoughts and deeds, and make you conscious of any selfish motive that might have a bad reaction on those near and dear to you. Let sentimental values be of greater importance to you than monetary ones. Avoid crowd; for they are liable to upset your disposition. This is a poor day to try to force any issue or to insist upon having your own way. Practice moderation in all you do throughout the day. You must conserve your energies, if you expect the next twenty-four hours to be pleasant ones. Married and engaged couples, as well as those who have under consideration a proposal of marriage may be called upon to practice a good deal of forbearance this day, to avoid a lot of fuss and bother.

If a woman and December 24 is your birthday, you ought to have a keen understanding of the frailties of those you know intimately and be prepared to make allowances for them. By being sympathetic and charitable you can brighten not only your own, but many other people's lives. In all likelihood a wave of prosperity is going to pick

Argentina Says Quarantine on Cattle Cause of Unfriendliness

Former United States Senator Henry J. Allen of Kansas, experienced newspaper and magazine correspondent, is writing a series of background articles on the Pan American Conference for the Post-Crescent. Herewith is the fourth of the articles by this distinguished authority on Pan American affairs. He is publisher of the Topeka State Journal.

BY HENRY J. ALLEN
Lima — The Argentines who have never come to a Pan American Conference in a cordial mood are a little agitated at the flood tide of anti-European sentiment which they meet now in every delegation here. Argentina has rather distinguished herself in the past by a pro-European complex. Sometimes she has been heard to repeat against the United States — made slogan that the only reason the United States backs the Pan American Union is because she wants the lion's share of the South American trade.

This year the anti-European feeling is a reflex of the revolutionary forces and methods of Germany and Italy.

The meaning of the meeting at Munich has begun to penetrate to the leadership of all the South American countries and this Congress is going to see a welding of American forces that will be a more genuine expression of a common interest than any we have known.

A delegate said to me "If we could only get the United States to treat Argentina fairly on the subject of her quarantine of the foot and mouth disease it would be easy to enjoy a relationship with Argentina more cordial than we've ever known."

For several years I had heard similar expressions frequently. So I determined to set forth exactly the facts of this long controversy and show how little of it remains unsettled.

An Economic Germ
The foot and mouth disease comes from an elusive germ which is extremely contagious in its effect upon cattle, sheep and hogs.

In a herd of cattle affected by it, two per cent die, dairy cows lose their calves, and go dry. Steers lose their appetite and are divested of their weight. It takes those which do not die a year in which to recover. Fortunately the disease does not affect the public health. Consumers of meat infected by the disease may eat it safely.

Hence the subject is economic to start out with—although it has become somewhat political, owing to the almost unanimous determination of American stock raisers to make the Argentine quarantine 100 per cent effective regardless of everything.

This American rejection of Argentine cattle and fresh meat followed the outbreak of the disease in the United States during 1929. The ravages were peculiarly severe in California and Texas, where the losses were in the neighborhood of 25 million dollars, 75 per cent of which were borne by the state and federal governments and 25 per cent by the live stock owners. We had suffered previous outbreaks, all traceable to Argentina, but the one of 1929 was the worst and the stock men raised to a fury by their losses demanded that it be the last.

No Germs Wanted
It was determined that we would not establish even an experimental work on the subject. We didn't want any germs around, even in laboratories.

It was decided upon scientific research that the disease is endemic in most of Argentina, and over practically all of Europe, England has periodic outbreaks amongst her fine herds. We decided not to allow the disease to become endemic in the United States.

Congress passed a resolution therefore that we would not allow the importation of live cattle or fresh meat from any country where the foot and mouth disease is endemic. In vain Argentina asked us to relieve the rigors of the administration, pointing out that she shipped her beef to England in periods when the disease was apparently under control. Our answer was that England had to take the risk if she eats Argentine beef. There is always a shortage of beef in England. In the United States there is no shortage. Why take the risk on Argentine beef? England more-over suffers periodic outbreaks as the result of the risks she takes. If in the United States we should get the epidemic as frequently as does

England, we'd risk a loss of five hundred million dollars a year. Argentina then said that there were zones in her republic where the disease is not endemic and that we were excluding meat from those sections, using the quarantine regulation as a mere pretext to keep meat out.

Zone Preference
At the Montevideo Congress of the Pan American Union we pledged ourselves to a program that would give zone preference as Argentina requested.

The United States board of animal industry found that Patagonia was the only zone entitled to the preference. It is bleak, arid, and windswept, producing only mutton. A treaty resolution backed by one animal industry and the state department favoring this zone is now in the senate. It has been kept back. The American live stock industry fights it, and the American public misbelieves that it involves the whole quarantine subject. As a matter of fact if this resolution to which the United States delegation pledged itself at Montevideo were adopted by our senate and we got all the mutton produced in Patagonia, it would mean—so the estimates of the bureau of animal industry show—only three ounces of mutton per year to each American. It now costs twenty-three cents per pound to lay mutton down in New York from Patagonia and mutton has sold there recently for sixteen cents a pound.

The entire controversy is now limited to the issue of Patagonia and it is no issue.

Nothing but a vague fear on the part of our producers and a real fear on the part of our statesmen touching the political reaction of those producers keep the zone policy our delegation agreed upon at Montevideo from being ratified.

Wilson Pupils Put Out Newspaper on Various Diseases
The Disease Gazette, a mimeographed paper on all types of disease germs and carriers, was published this week by pupils of health classes at Wilson Junior High school. Miss Hazel Westphal directed the work.

Betty Hooyman was editor-in-chief for the paper. Reporters were Ethel Kuehn, Joyce Flynn, Marjorie Baer, Betty Hooyman, Betty Richter, Ella Stueck, Virginia Hedberg. Typists were Betty Hooyman, Ruth Robertson and Ella Stueck; artists, Phyllis Luebke, Jean Nelson and Ruth Robertson. Those who helped to mimeograph the paper were Jean Nelson, Marjorie Gill, Fay Parker, Ilmae Ries and Ellen Van Ooyen.

Junior Class Gives Party for Faculty

"Bill" Novotny orchestra of Oshkosh and distributed gifts to each member present from a huge Christmas tree. A special concert also was presented by the orchestra for the upper grades of St. John school earlier in the afternoon. A grand march was led by Miss Jacoba Verbruggen and Richard De Bruin Claus made his appearance at the party to music furnished by the Funeral services were to be conducted Friday in Milwaukee. Surviving are the widower, two sons, five daughters and 22 grandchildren.

Holiday Breakfasts

I've been trying for hours to think up a clever phrase to express my thoughts today. But this deep thinking has convinced me of only one thing, that there is no better way of voicing my sincere good wishes for you than to say "the same old words in the same old way" and so I Wish You All A Very Merry Christmas.

Try serving the family something unusual for Miss Schneider breakfast on Christmas day, instead of placing all the effort on the dinner. Their surprise and pleasure will more than repay you for the effort made.

New Year's day ushers in a new year, and the way to get it off to a perfect start is to serve one of these tempting, satisfying, breakfasts listed below.

Love and Kindness Usually Cures When All Else Fails

BY ANGELO PATRI

Have you a child who does not seem to understand that you are trying to help him and goes contrary to all your hopes for him? Does he sulk when you correct him, argue when you advise him, rebel when you command him? Most children do as this one does and the best cure for his disease, which is nothing after all but childishness, is to love him.

Have you a little girl who seems to think that all the knowledge of the world is bound up in her light head? Does she storm when you caution her, weep when you prohibit her waywardness, rebel when you insist that she take the wiser way? Many girls do and the best care for their childishness is to love them. Love the girlish mistakes along with the girlish loveliness. Just keep loving her.

Maybe you have an ailing child, sick for many days with little hope for recovery? Maybe the doctors have shaken their heads and looked out of the window while they talked to you. Keep loving that child. Keep holding on to him, keep knowing that in him there is a power for recuperation, for growth, for cure, that is beyond all human understanding and love might bring it out. Love cures when all else fails. Just keep loving him, keep hoping, keep on trying. Love works miracles.

Or you have a child whose mind lives in the shadows. He does not grow as other children grow; he does not laugh as they laugh, play as they play. Love him. Hold on to the truth in every child no matter how deeply hidden there is some power for growth. No child has ever yet been as completely developed as his power for development allowed. Hope for this one, plan for him, work for him with all the power that love, which is infinite, can bestow upon you. Love creates as well as cures.

It may be that the child of your heart has gone on and left your arms empty. You can keep your heart full with your love for him. Keep on loving him. Nothing that was ever created can really die. The child lives on in your thought of him. He is in every lovely thing you see or feel or know. All your life is glorified by your love for him. Keep it. Cherish it. It is the one force that speaks of eternity, of life immortal. Love never really dies.

When children try your soul, as they will, when they cause you grief, as they do, when they rouse your anger and provoke you to wrath as is their way, when they reduce you to tears and prayers as often happens; love them. Don't bother about anything of all until you have first made clear to yourself that your love for the child in question is holding firmly, swelling warmly in your heart. Then, whatever you do will be as nearly right as it is possible for human judgment to be right.

Love is strong. It serves; it waits; it suffers, but it never gives up. Love is like magic, giving strength to the weak and wisdom to the foolish. If you have a child, or know a child, or deal with a child, love him.

Bold Bids Stave Off Sure Loss

BY ELY CULBERTSON

Question 17 of the recent examination was a big disappointment to me, or rather, the answers were. I had fondly imagined that Mr. and Mrs. Bridge Player were a great deal braver than they use to be. Apparently I was wrong. This question was:

Both sides vulnerable, the bidding has proceeded:

North East South West
1 heart Double 1 spade Pass
2 no trump Double ?

You are South and hold:

A Q 9 8 4 J 3 J 7 4 J 6 2

What call do you make now?

The official answer was that South should redouble and, frankly speaking, I felt that the question and answer were somewhat too easy for such an examination. To my amazement, only about 15 per cent of the readers who mailed in their answers had the courage to redouble—not that it should take much courage! The proposition is clear cut. North, vulnerable opens the bidding with one heart and, after East shows enough strength for a take-out double and South makes the presumably weak bid of one spade, North is strong enough to jump to three no trump. This is a terrific bid on North's part, and since South has about four times as much as he might have had for the spade bid he made directly over a take-out double, any action but a redouble is beyond the pale. You cannot trust every one at a bridge table, but for better or worse are temporarily wedded to your partner. If you cannot trust an impressive bid such as North's three no trump (under the circumstances noted) then you cannot trust any of South's three "jacks" become potential stoppers, and, perhaps, tricks and his spade suit is much better than North can expect.

One does not get opportunities like this every day of the week. If a partner of mine, under the given circumstances, failed to redouble with South's hand, I would make a point of presenting him with a large fluffy powder puff!

The bidding:
West North East South
Pass 1 heart Pass 1 spade
Pass 2 spades Pass 2 no trump
Pass 3 clubs Pass 3 no trump
Pass Pass Pass Pass

I present this hand and bidding rather doubtfully, because the only moral I will be able to draw is that crime does pay. South's outrageous optimism in persisting to three no trump (when his partner's bidding had specifically warned him about diamonds) would, 99 times in 100, meet fitting punishment. This time, however, the very audacity of it "fixed" the opponents completely. West placed considerable diamond strength on his right, hence refused to open the suit. Looking for a "neutral" opening, West led a low heart. Declarer's jack won and a heart was immediately returned. West won with the ace and, still feeling that a diamond lead would give declarer at least one diamond trick that he might not be able to make for himself, exited with a heart. (West was afraid that the club shift might find East with the J x x and declarer with the A 10.) Now declarer was home. He ran off the heart and club suits and cashed the spade ace for the ninth trick.

When it came to light that the defenders could have run five diamond tricks, West's remarks were more forcefully profitable.

Travel is made easier every day, and Myrna Loy's handkerchiefs prove this point. The actress' collection of "city" hankies, doesn't mean you can't use them in town, but only that they have pictures of cities on them. Outstanding is London in grape-colored linen with the buildings in dull gray, and Constantinople is grand on a terracotta ground.

With the opera season at its height, Norma Shearer's cloak in very near white with gold galleon embroidery at the rounded collar and outside pockets is superb. Miss Shearer chooses to wear a simply cut Grecian-draped gown in the same off-white shade under the cloak with a magnificent gold and ruby hair jewel as her only ornament.

CASE RECORDS OF A PSYCHOLOGIST

By Dr. George W. Crane
Psychologist, Northwestern University

Here is a well educated mother who is so blind to applied psychology that she is killing the love of all her children. She is a dog in the manger, too, and a victim of the same delusion about racial superiority which has obsessed Hitler.

to break it up during his first year of marriage.

Her objection to Larry's girl on the basis of her Irish ancestry is a smoke screen to hide her selfish refusal to share her son with any other women.

Actually, we know today that your race has nothing to do with whether you are good or bad, pretty or ugly, vulgar or pure, a criminal or a saint.

Why We Have Wars

One of the greatest causes of wars, moreover, is this false pride in race. If we could only get rid of this silly notion, we'd live together much more peacefully.

Men are not great simply because they are German, or Irish, or English, etc. Like Lincoln, they attain greatness because they study and work, and because a cultured mother or father implanted ideals and ambitions in them.

Wars will continue to breed in Europe because they keep flaunting racial difference by the very fact they speak so many different languages.

If all nations in Europe spoke the same language, there would be fewer wars. In this country we have millions of people from all the European nations, but they live in harmony because they speak the same language, and thereby are impressed with their similarities instead of their differences.

Selfish Tyrants

Some mothers are selfishness personified. This is certainly true of Larry's mother. She came to me for sympathy and aid in getting Larry to give up his sweetheart.

But I couldn't side with her, after hearing the whole story. She is a selfish tyrant trying to keep her son from ever marrying.

Like many widows, she simply invested a double portion of love in her son. She gave him the normal amount that mothers usually give their sons. But owing to the death of her husband, she also placed on Larry much of the possessive regard she would normally have given his father. Having invested doubly, she is doubly jealous.

and my girl on a motor trip to Cleveland last month, Mother insisted on sitting in front with me for the entire trip, leaving my girl alone in the back seat.

"Besides, Mother refused to talk to my sweetheart on the whole trip. Dr. Crane, why does she act so rude and bitter?"

DIAGNOSIS:

The mother in this case had been calling me on the telephone for two weeks before she got her son to come to see me. And the mother is all that Larry has described and more.

She is a typical widow who has allowed herself to become so wrapped up in her son that she is doubly jealous. The same thing happened when her two other sons married.

She hasn't spoken to one daughter-in-law in 15 years, and the other son refuses to allow her admission to his home, because she tried Answer: I can't imagine that a transient visitor, who comes in in the afternoon or evening, would take the liberty of turning on your radio. It would be all right if she asked you, let's say, whether you ever listened to the XYZ program at half past four. But if you then did not offer to turn on the radio to listen to it, she should most certainly let the matter drop. Of course if she asks you point-blank to tune in on this program, you couldn't very well refuse to get the station. On the other hand, if this visitor is staying in your house, especially if she is paying you a long visit, then she is supposed to be as at home as though she were in her own house. In this case, if she chooses to turn on a program that happens not to appeal to you, there is little you could do about it except have something to do in some other part of the house until this particular program is over.

Visiting Cards

Even in this day there are certain definite occasions when we leave visiting cards which are important to know about. Mrs. Post has written about these, and about the actual engraving of the cards themselves, in a new printed slip. If you would like to have a copy, send this clipping and a stamped (3c), self-addressed envelope to Mrs. Post in care of this newspaper.

Good Taste Today

By Emily Post

FIRST PARTY

Dear Mrs. Post: We would like to give a party that will actually be a housewarming, because it is the first party we are giving in our new house. We'd rather not call it a housewarming because we don't want people to feel that they have to bring gifts, and I believe gifts are always taken to a housewarming just as they are to a shower. Am I right? But what shall we call the party if not a housewarming so people will understand that this is our official opening of the new house. We are inviting many different groups of friends.

Answer: I have never heard that people felt obliged to take gifts to a housewarming unless it was actually gotten up by the friends of the new house owners and called a shower. You might word your invitations "open house" or an "at home," however, if you are afraid the term "housewarming" may suggest gifts.

Radio Pests

Dear Mrs. Post: Is it not in bad taste for a guest in the house to go to the radio just any time she pleases and turn on certain programs? They are all programs that bore us very much and this is the reason we don't turn them on ourselves!

Winter rains hold no terror for Ann Rutherford since the purchase of the latest in wet weather togs, Gabardine on one side, horse-blanket plaid on the other, waterproofing on both, it equals the season's most interesting reversible, raincoat, with a detachable hood.

Woman Takes Big Chance When She Weds Irresponsible Man

BY DOROTHY DIX

Dear Dorothy Dix—I am 29 and have never got anywhere in life. Just drifted. I am not too homely but no raving beauty. Most people ignore me except one man who wants to marry me. He is a fine chap, but he is one of the perpetual boys who will never be adult. He has no purpose in life. Shuns responsibility. Feels sorry for the fellows who carry the weight of the world on their shoulders. He is four years older than I, and, although he has worked since graduation, he has nothing to show for it, not even anything that he has bought. His money just dribbles through his fingers without his knowing where it goes. In me he sees something really different and beautiful from what I actually am, and he could be happy with me all of his life, but what of me? Shall I marry him because I feel there is no way of finding another husband; because I feel old and frustrated myself; because, maybe, in my small way, I can help him, since we are both so much alike?

GERTRUDE.

DOROTHY DIX.

Answer: The Peter Pans who never grow up are very fascinating in fiction, but when you have to deal with them in real life they shed their glamour and become the most exasperating of human beings. Childishness has its strict age limit, and the irresponsibility, the credulity that believes in Santa Claus, the lack of worldly wisdom and sophistication, the stopping of any task to play that are enchanting in the 5-year-old youngster are the traits of a moron at 30.

This is a hard and practical world, Gertrude, in which there is far more work than singing in the sun. Somebody has to shoulder responsibilities. Somebody has to bear burdens. Somebody has to look ahead and provide food and shelter and sustenance for every family. So I should NOT advise you to marry a man who in his thirties has still the heart and mind of a boy. That is, unless you have a bad case of the mother complex and want a child whom you can keep tied to your apron strings and lead by the hand. If you feel that way about it, go to it, and you will get your reward in his always loving you and looking up to you and depending upon you.

But don't think you can change the man. He is even as nature made him. He will never be metamorphosed into a sturdy oak. He will always be a broken reed to lean upon. You will never be able to sew up the holes in his pockets. He will always be an easy mark for all the chisellers. He will always be a weakling. And you can do nothing for him except to love and take care of him. You can't supply him with a backbone. But he will always have his elfin, boyish charm for you—if it doesn't sour on you after years of petting and coddling a six-foot infant.

Dear Dorothy Dix—I have been keeping steady company with a young lady and care a great deal for her, but she has a persistent habit of bragging of her conquests. She raves continually about her former boy friends; the gifts they gave her; places they took her; how crazy they were about her. She still sees them on certain occasions and tells me about it. Often when we are out together and a good-looking chap passes by she will say that she could go for him in a big way and try to attract his attention. Yet she says she loves me. Do you think it advisable to marry her under these existing conditions? STEADY.

Answer: The young lady shows lack of good taste and good sportsmanship. Also she displays an abysmal lack of knowledge of men.

When a girl brags of her conquests to a man she is trying to build herself up with him and to what his desire for her by making him believe that there are dozens of other men just dying to marry her. That if he doesn't grab her and rush with her to the altar one of her former lovers will snatch her away from him. Discount the number of proposals that any girl tells you she has had by 99 per cent.

THE ARMY POST MURDERS
—By Virginia Hanson—

THE CHARACTERS

Katherine Cornish, myself, visiting Elizabeth on a mid-western Army post.

Elizabeth, Colonel Wright's daughter.

Adam, Drew, acting commanding officer.

Yesterday: The sentry is killed by a stone while he is trying to tell Adam something about a balloon.

Chapter 28
THE NOTEBOOK

I went up the stairs after Adam. Barney, in pajamas and dressing gown, was a dark huddle under the front window. Adam was sitting on his haunches looking down at him helplessly. He turned at my entrance.

"Can't make it out. He's got a good front pulse, breathing normally. Just seems to be out cold."

"Maybe he fainted—I thought he was going to once or twice this evening."

Adam said, "Maybe." Then, in a loud, cheerful voice: "Well, Doc will be here in a minute, anyway. He can do it out."

The rooms were like Charlie's, but neater. There were curtains, dingy but clean, at the windows. The furniture was substantially the same. There were no pictures at all, but there were books. A set of shelves between the front window and the hall door was full of rather abstruse titles—the usual military tomes, old textbooks; a few more indicative of personal taste: The Human Mind, The Human Body, Outline of Science, Origin of Species, Mind in the Making, books on floriculture, on horse breeding, etc.

My eye jumped from the lower shelf to the floor at my feet. A little brown notebook, halfway under the bookcase, not far from Barney's outstretched hand. I picked it up, rifled the pages, feeling no sense of impropriety, not yet formulating my new knowledge that ordinary standards of good taste were over meant to deal with murder.

Less than a score of pages were filled with a cramped but legible script. At the top of the first page then you will probably guess one too many.

To boast of one's money is vulgar, but to boast of the men who have loved her shows that a girl is lacking in all delicacy of feeling and sensibility. It is making a public exhibition of a man's broken heart to gratify her vanity, and it is an unthinkable thing for a lady to do.

Girls make a great mistake when they think that they make a hit with men when they tell them of their former sweethearts. It scares them off, for every man knows that his scalp will be the next she will display, and it makes him get away from her as fast as he can stumble on his frozen feet.

Making a man jealous is neither the best way to win him or to hold him, and a man takes a great risk in marrying a girl who is always throwing some other man in his teeth.

Dear Miss Dix—I have a married son whose wife has never called me "Mother," which hurts me very much. She treats me well, but never says the one little word that would make me feel so happy and have a different feeling toward her. She expects to be a mother soon and what worries me is that after the child is able to walk I know she will call me Grandma herself, and I don't want that. I want her to call me Mother. My son calls her mother "Mom" and other girls call their mothers-in-law "Mother." How can I get her to do it?

A MOTHER.

Perhaps if she reads your letter and knows how much stress you put upon her calling you Mother she will do so. Certainly it is a little thing to do if it will make happy the woman who has given her a good husband.

It is queer that brides who call their fathers-in-law "Dad" or "Pop" or "the Governor" or whatever their husbands call their fathers seem to find an embarrassment in calling their mothers-in-law "Mother" or "Mamma." Certainly this betrays no ill-will on their part or lack of affection. It is some vocal hurdle that they don't seem able to take. I have known dozens of young women who simply called their mothers-in-law "you," or waited to catch their eyes before speaking to them until their first child was born and they could take refuge in "grandma."

It is a small matter, but I think many other women besides the one who writes this letter would like to have their daughters-in-law claim kin with them, and the fact that their daughters-in-law always call them "Mrs." keeps them from ever having a real mother feeling toward them.

(Copyright, 1938)

four words were blacked in. A reminder? A thesis?

"Point of Attack: Reticence."

I read on:

"Why have the Orpingtons no children? They are both healthy. And she likes kids—have seen her watching them at the playground, but always evasive when the subject is mentioned. Must see if I can find out if they ever had a child; someone in the service would know—unless married before he came in."

"Note: Lou has a tic. Have seen her try to disguise it by jerking her head and laughing without reason."

Adam was prowling around the room, casting occasional worried glances at Barney's motionless form.

"Come here," I called to him softly. "What do you make of this?"

He came and glanced over my shoulder.

"Looks like Barney's writing..."

I held it still while he read and watched his face covertly. His eyes were very bright with that hunting gleam. He came to the end of the page and turned it, his long-fingered, vital hand covering mine in the most impersonal of contacts.

"Nothing hit me."

"He must have had it in his hand" I said and showed him where I had found the notebook.

He took it from me and was turning another page when we both heard steps in the downstairs hall. I saw him close the notebook and slip it into the pocket of his white slacks that still managed to look crisp and immaculate. Then he was

'SPOOL WAIST'

Style flash! "Spool waists" are as fashionable for aprons as for dresses! And this Anne Adams design brings two most flattering interpretations—one with a rounded top and pockets, the other with V-shaped top and pockets to match. Both are made of so-easily-espacially since there's the very helpful Sewing Instructor sheet to consult. Stitch up the dressy, dainty, trimmed style for when you have guests—and the plain type for "busy morning" wear. If you select a check or plaid, cut the chic girly section bias—it's such a perky touch! The straps hug the shoulders—they can't slip because the back is cut high.

Pattern 4971 is available in sizes small, medium and large. Flowered version takes 2 1/2 yards 36 inch fabric and 3 yards ric-rac; other version, 2 1/2 yards 36 inch fabric.

leaning over the railing and calling for Doc Moore.

That young man carried authority with him. He came in with his little black bag, inspected me with a quick, professional, but not unfriendly, eye, and knelt beside Barney. Adam crouched near him and some wordless communication passed between them. I saw Doc Moore turn back Barney's eyelids, touch the cornea. Then he took a tiny pencil flashlight from his bag, shone it full into the eye, and I could see that the pupil did not contract.

"No fake about that," he said cheerfully and took out his stethoscope. After listening for a long moment he put it aside and parted the rather thick golden hair that lay so close against Barney's scalp, exploring the skull with sensitive, practiced fingers.

"Slight contusion on the side of the head," he observed suddenly. "No fracture that I can find."

"Enough to knock him out?" Adam asked.

"Hard to tell. He might have fainted—did it once before this summer—struck his head on something when he fell."

He applied the stethoscope again, dropped it with a dissatisfied expression.

Barney came out of it suddenly, like these people who wake at once and jump out of bed with all their faculties. He sat up, glanced from Adam to the doctor, said, "What's happened?"

"You're asking us?"

City Collection Of 1938 Taxes to Begin Wednesday

Treasurer Will Mail 6,000 Bills to Property Owners Tuesday

Bills for 1938 taxes will be mailed the day after Christmas and the tax collection is scheduled to open at 9 o'clock Wednesday morning, Dec. 28, according to Joseph A. Kox, city treasurer.

More than 11,000 separate bills were prepared by the treasurer's staff during the last two weeks, 10,000 for real estate taxes and 1,000 for personal property taxes. The bills will be mailed to more than 6,000 Appleton property owners, 474 of whom are living in 21 states from Milford, Me., to San Diego, Calif., and from Seattle, Wash., to Miami, Fla.

Although 50 per cent of real estate taxes and special taxes levied in full may be extended to July 1 next year, it doesn't mean that a taxpayer can pay only half his taxes. The treasurer explained that tax accounting deals with the property and not the individual. If an individual owns several parcels of land, for example, he must pay 50 per cent of the tax against each parcel to be eligible for extension, not half the total.

Property owners who take advantage of the ordinance, must pay the amount extended in one sum not later than July 31. The amount becomes due and payable on July 1. The amount extended will bear an interest charge of 1 per cent. If the tax is not paid by July 31, the tax will be declared delinquent. Personal property taxes may not be extended under the ordinance.

Workers in Small Steel Plant Face 'Cut or No Jobs'

High-Speed Mills Cripple Independent Concerns

Pittsburgh—(AP)—The pinch of the new high-speed steel mills clamped down today on 2,200 workers of the nearby McKeesport Tin Plate Company, dampening their Christmas with the ultimatum—"take a wage cut or no jobs after Dec. 28."

Harold Ruttenberg, youthful research director for the C.I.O.'s steel workers organizing committee, frankly told a mass meeting of anxious workers and their families last night that was the situation.

The demanded reductions range from 6 to 15 per cent.

The speaker told the workmen their was a situation being faced by hundreds of small, independent steel concerns, with the introduction of multi-million-dollar mills like the recently dedicated $80,000,000 Irwin Works of the Carnegie-Illinois Steel corporation.

Others Get Cut

Earlier this week some 1,500 employees of the Follansbee Brothers company, another tin plate concern undergoing reorganization, agreed to accept a wage reduction if they could get work.

Ruttenberg told the audience it was up to them to make the decision although his organization was strongly against accepting wage reductions, "because we fear it will affect national prosperity."

The labor leader said the C.I.O. would swing behind the workers if they refused to accept the cut, but warned he did not believe their jobs as long as two years, even with a cut.

After listening to the labor leader the crowd, which had dwindled to almost one-third of its original number during the almost four hours of discussion, shouted approval of a motion to reject the wage cut.

As if reflecting its renewed militancy, the Carnegie-Illinois simultaneously announced it was returning office workers to a five and one-half day week, Jan. 1, with a corresponding jump of salaries amounting to nearly 10 per cent.

'Naughty' 9-Year-Old Girl Has No Hope for Visit From Santa

Chicago—(AP)—Mary Jane Uhl, who is 9 and believes in Santa Claus, doesn't think much of her chances of being visited by jolly St. Nicholas this year.

Mary Jane said Santa Claus doesn't come to houses where nine-year-olds are naughty and, she quickly added, she has been a bad girl.

She told her story to Police Lieutenant Fred Kelly. He found her, with a bewildered look on her face and carrying two suit-cases, walking in the loop after midnight. She explained her plight.

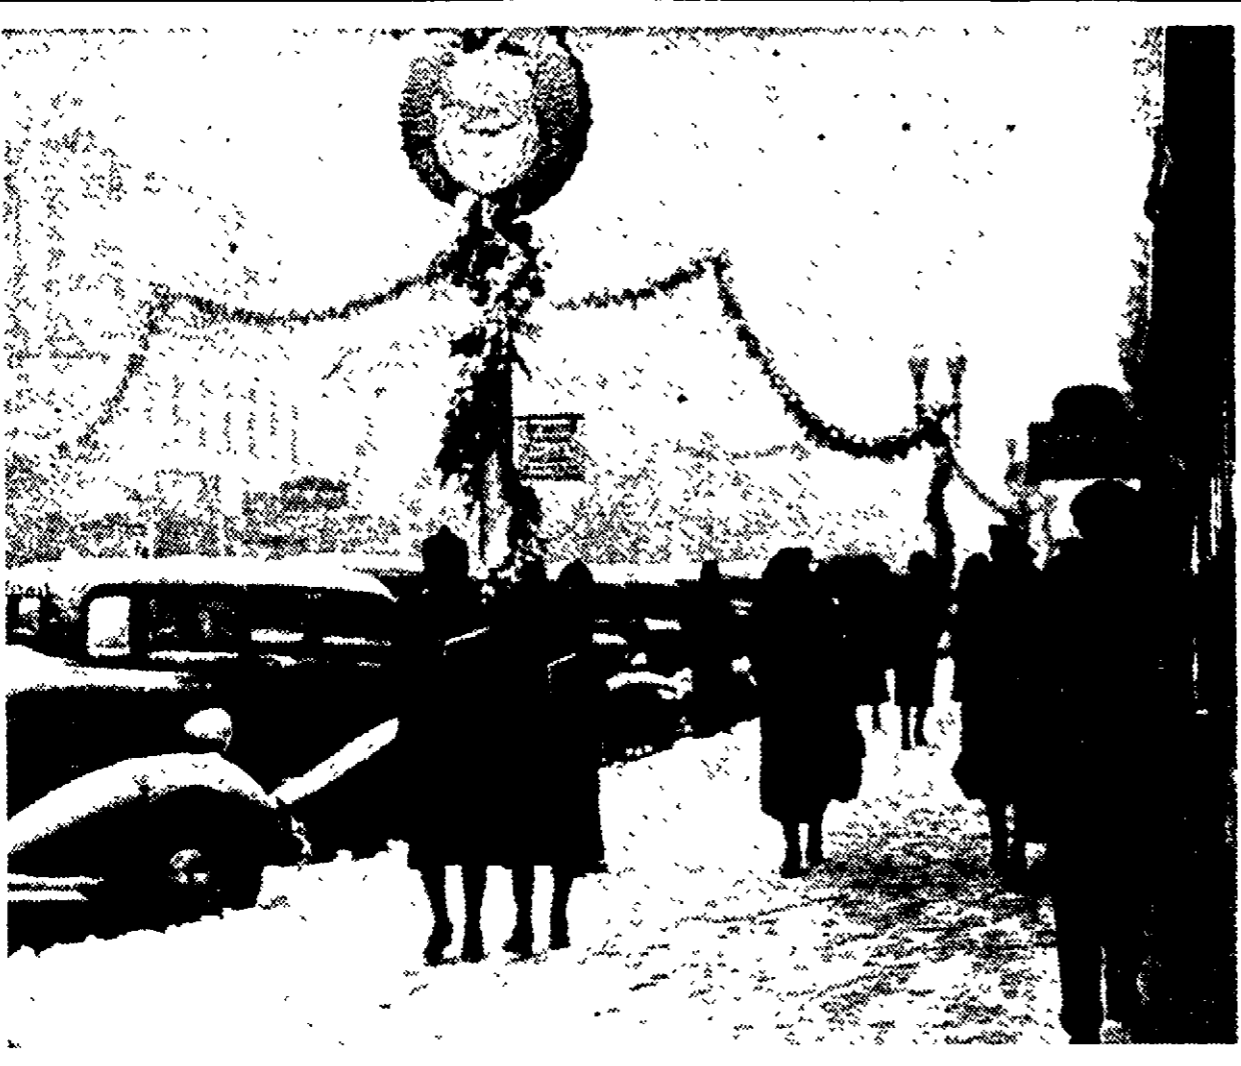

Last night Mary Jane was sent to bed after being scolded by her mother for losing a pair of gloves and spilling ink on a Christmas package. Among other things, Mary Jane was told Santa Claus wasn't coming to the Uhl home Sunday morning.

Mary Jane couldn't sleep so she packed two suit-cases with some of her clothes, a flashlight, a pair of salt and pepper shakers, a pair of opera glasses and her favorite doll. A note she left her mother indicated she planned a quick trip to Hollywood—she promised to return "Friday morning."

When Mrs. Uhl discovered Mary Jane's absence she notified police. Mary Jane was resigned to her fate as police prepared to take her home.

"I don't care if Santa Claus doesn't come to our house," she said, "because I know he won't now that I have been such a bad girl."

Yule Cancellations At Post Office are Ahead of 1937 Pace

Christmas season cancellations at the Appleton post office are 9 per cent ahead of last year, Postmaster Stephen Balliet said today.

Figuring from Dec. 8 — which is about the time when the first Christmas mail appears—up to the last evening, the cancellations amount to 507,900. For the corresponding period of last year, the figure is 467,300, an actual gain of 40,600 and a 9 per cent boost.

Balliet remarked today that he believed people mailed cards and packages earlier this year and that the post office force has had no difficulty keeping pace with the incoming mail. The carriers set out this morning with their biggest loads of the season and made a second trip this afternoon. "We will have all the mail in the post office in the homes by tomorrow evening," the postmaster said.

Breaks Leg When Pinned by Truck

Harry Trettin, Appleton, Injured in Traffic Accident

Harry Trettin, 124 W. Pacific street, suffered a broken leg in a traffic accident on Highway 55 about 30 miles north of Shawano, in Langlade county about 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon. He was taken to a Shawano hospital where his condition was reported satisfactory this morning.

Trettin skidded off the highway and had stepped to the rear of his car which was in the ditch. Eugene Maas, White Lake, who was going north, had stopped his machine on the highway at the scene as another truck, driven by Urban Evert, Hollister, approached from the north. To avoid a collision, Evert went into the ditch, according to a report given Langlade county authorities.

The Evert truck struck Trettin, pinning him between the machine and his own car. It took 15 minutes to extricate him.

other family would have to go without anything, because there isn't enough money to go around.

Good Fellows are those people who are willing to give a little for those who haven't anything. Good Fellows don't fall back on the lame excuse that "they are doing their share by paying taxes," because they know that tax money isn't doing very much for those who need help.

There still is time to be a Good Fellow, and it is so easy to be one. All you need to do is send a contribution to the Good Fellows club, care of the Post-Crescent, and you may be sure that the money will be judiciously spent where it will do the most good.

1,000 at Fox River Firm's Open House

Wives and children of Fox River Paper-company workers, many of them seeing the inside of a paper mill for the first time, were the guests of the company at a Christmas open house last night.

Employees and their families—about 1,000 strong—accepted the invitation of the company to visit the four mills, Telulah and mills No. 1, 2, and 3 for two hours during the evening. They paused in their inspections to enjoy lunches served in two of the mills.

First Snowfall Is Cleared From Streets by Noon

Snowloading Machine Will Begin Operation Early Saturday Morning

Appleton's street department took the winter's first heavy snowfall in its stride and cleared all the streets of the city before noon today, even those in the outlying sections.

Alfred Wickesberg, city engineer, said the plows started working at 11 o'clock last night several hours before the snow stopped falling. By morning all the streets in the downtown section were cleared of snow.

Thirty men, the full department crew, were called out to man trucks and shovels and pushed the snow back so men driving to work would not be inconvenienced. Two graders, four truck plows and a sidewalk plow were put in operation.

The city's snowloading machine will be put on the downtown streets at 1 o'clock Saturday morning to remove the snow which was pushed to the gutters. The entire downtown section, two blocks on Wisconsin avenue, Clark street and areas in front of churches and public buildings will be cleared, Wickesberg said.

Thirty extra men were put to work at 7 o'clock this morning to shovel intersections and sidewalks about public lands.

The city engineer again reminded property owners of their obligations to keep sidewalks clear of snow and ice and safe for pedestrians. The city ordinances require property owners to remove snow and ice from walks by 9 o'clock in the morning in front of premises owned and occupied by him. If ice cannot be removed, the property owner must sprinkle it with ashes or sand.

The ordinance provides that for every day the walks are not cleaned, the property owner is subject to a fine of $1 and costs. In addition, the city may send its men to shovel the walks and charge the cost to the property owners.

2,000 Toys Spread Throughout City to 800 Needy Children

The boys department of the Y. M. C. A. was a busy place today as volunteers went to work on the task of distributing about 2,000 toys to 800 needy children throughout the city.

Work started this morning and it was expected that the task would be completed by about 4 o'clock this afternoon. A total of 300 spots are listed for the cars and trucks donated by individuals and firms of the city for the day.

This year's volume of repaired and redecorated toys is as much and probably greater than any previous year, C. C. Bailey, "Y" boys director, said today.

Municipal Court Jury Allows $50 of Claim

Edward LaFlame, Appleton, was awarded $50 on his claim for $450 against Henry Walters, West Bend, by a municipal court jury yesterday.

LaFlame claimed $450 was due him from Walters in money given to the latter and for janitor services. The jury found the LaFlame had not been hired by Walters for pay at $1 a day, but did find that LaFlame had given Walters $50 which had not been repaid.

Meat Markets, Stores Close Early Saturday

Appleton meat markets will close at 5:30 Saturday evening, proprietors announced today.

Other stores in the city, which have been open until 9 o'clock evenings of this week, will close at 5:30 and 6 o'clock Saturday night.

Republicans Show New Spirit As They Assemble at Capital

Washington—(AP)—With a new light in his merry eyes, William Tyler Page, veteran clerk of the house Republicans, flipped back his swallow-tail coat today, sat down and surveyed the rejuvenated party elephant.

"It's fatter," he smiled, "than it's been."

It is, too. There will be 170 Republican representatives in the new congress against 88 in the old. In the senate will be 23 Republicans against 15 this year.

The newcomers have been assembling gradually this week to learn about their jobs.

Wearing a big, broad smile, Representative-elect Robert W. Kean (R-N.J.)—son of former Senator Hamilton F. Kean—brezzed into town.

Did he sit down quietly and wait for someone to call him? No. He got right into the spirit of things. He gave a cocktail party.

It looks as if the Republicans will have the biggest house member—George W. Gillie, of Indiana, who towers 6 feet 5 inches.

"My, my," sighed John W. McCabe, one of the house pages, "the party certainly is bigger." (John's height is 4 feet 9.)

Clyde M. Reed, new Republican senator from Kansas, got here early, and the first thing he asked for was an office.

Told he couldn't have a permanent one right yet, the senator-elect frowned.

"Then give me a temporary one," he said, "I have work to do."

Roosevelt and Other U. S. Leaders Laud Senator Glass

Washington—(AP)—President Roosevelt joined with others high in public life today in praising Senator Glass of Virginia for his work in creating and defending the federal reserve system.

The occasion was the twenty-fifth anniversary of the signing of the federal reserve act, observed by unveiling a bronze plaque, bearing the senator's likeness, in the federal reserve board building.

The demonstration brought tears to the senator's eyes. Surrounded by sons and daughters, he said he had "not a thing to say, my heart is too full for words."

He had just heard read letters from the president and William G. McAdoo, who as secretary of the treasury was the first ex-officio chairman of the reserve board, and a speech by Representative Stearns (D-Ala.), chairman of the house banking committee.

"It is especially appropriate," Mr. Roosevelt wrote, "that you are marking the anniversary by unveiling on the wall opposite the portrait of President Wilson a bas-relief of Senator Glass of Virginia, who as one of the original sponsors of the act, has always been its defender."

Steagall said "historians will be amazed at the mass of information brought to the problem by Senator Glass," who as house banking chairman managed the legislation in that chamber.

"We beat back with devastating facts opposition both in and out of congress," Steagall declared. "Opponents became supporters through his masterly presentation."

Hundreds Join in Celebration Over Murray's Victory

Ogdensburg, Wis.—Merchants of Ogdensburg and farmer friends of Reid F. Murray, Waupaca, congressman-elect from the Seventh Wisconsin district were hosts Thursday night to hundreds of folks from Waupaca and adjoining counties who came here to take part in the election celebration.

There were no turnstiles, of course, but people came and went like bees to a syrup pail and their number were legion despite the snowstorm that impeded travel of any kind and made car driving hazardous.

Weather conditions forced them to change plans for a barbeque and Carl Jahnman, town of St. Lawrence farmer, who was in charge of the affair, had the steer cut up and the meat roasted in bakery ovens. Outside of these minor disturbances the event went off without a hitch.

Maybe that darn steer wasn't quite as tender as it should have been, maybe some of the lads wished they hadn't ventured out in the storm after they skidded their cars into a ditch once or twice, maybe the cows didn't get milked as early as usual the following morning, but the "Reid Murray" barbeque brought much fun and enjoyment to a host of his friends in Waupaca county and throughout the Seventh district.

It Is Said--

and the wind was quiet. At 12:30 this afternoon, the thermometer atop the Post-Crescent building registered 31 degrees. For the 24-hour period ending at 9 o'clock this morning, the highest mark in the city was 30 and the lowest 20, according to charts at the Wisconsin Michigan Power company plant. Precipitation measured .43 of an inch.

Six traffic deaths, two each in Illinois, Minnesota, and New York, were attributed to the winter's first heavy snowfall.

San Antonio, Tex., with 76, and Lander, Wyo., with four above, were the hottest and coldest cities in the nation yesterday.

CHRISTMAS

FROM YOUR "ALL-YEAR" FRIENDS!

Clapper Suggests Senate and House Committee on Defense

BY RAYMOND CLAPPER

Washington—Recent world changes have thrust so many considerations into the problem of national defense that congress would be justified in resorting to special procedure. The most practical method would be to set up a joint house and senate committee on national defense.

This would be a special, temporary committee. It would be obligated to survey the whole field. It would ascertain what we were doing to defend. First of all, it would define the problem. Are we going to protect merely the shores of the United States, or the hemisphere? Then it would prepare a rounded program to support the policy, covering army, navy, aircraft, industrial preparedness and the methods of financing. It all goes together.

In this situation, it would be criminal to deal with the problem of national defense in the old piecemeal way. Can we do the job properly by working through some 10 house and senate committees, each jealously going its own way and the others be damned?

Under standard procedure you have the house military affairs committee holding hearings, running its own show. The house naval affairs committee runs its own show. Neither knows nor cares what the other is doing. How can you relate air strength and the navy, or army coast defense and the navy, without considering them together and in relation to each other? How can you decide how many army airplanes are needed until you know what the navy is going to consist of? These matters are all tied together and they should be considered together.

You can't have properly balanced national defense when you cut the job up into small pieces and distribute it among some 10 different committees each working independently. The working out of the defense program would be scattered piecemeal among the standing house committees on military affairs, naval affairs, appropriations and ways and means, and among the senate committees on appropriations, foreign relations, military affairs, naval affairs and finance. Duplicate hearings would be held, and there would result a long time-consuming scramble in which army, navy and aviation each would grab as much as possible. A joint committee would know where the emphasis was to be put—whether on the army, aircraft or navy, and in what proportions.

Such a Committee Would Deserve Respect

The joint house and senate committee should contain representation from all of these committees just named, plus perhaps that of the house foreign affairs committee, which, while of little consequence ordinarily, does have jurisdiction over neutrality legislation, which must be considered in connection with the whole national defense problem.

Take two members from each of these standing committees, the chairman and the top Republican, and make up a special temporary joint committee of perhaps 20 members. That would be a smaller committee than most of the regular major house and senate committees, and therefore not unwieldy. It would represent both houses, both parties, and every standing committee concerned in the problem. By taking the top members, you assemble the most experienced house and senate members, each well-informed in his particular field.

Put such a committee to work, first on a carefully organized program of hearings to gather expert testimony and second on the drafting of a balanced, unified program. Then congress will know what it is doing. Bring such a program before the full membership of the house and senate, under the auspices of such a special joint committee, and it would be entitled to respect. Because of the men on it, such a committee would be powerful enough to protect the program from raiding on the floor.

Such a special joint committee as is here suggested ought to produce the best program that is possible under our system—one that provides enough but not too much, balanced and proportioned adequately to the needs of America at this hour.

THE ARMY POST MURDERS

By Virginia Hanson

Adam fetched a bed pillow from the other room, and over his protests they forced him to lie down again.

"What's under me?" he asked fretfully, writhing a hand under the small of his back. It came out clutching something which he subjected to puzzled scrutiny. "Where did that come from?"

Adam whistled softly. "I craned for a glimpse.

It was a smooth stone, white-washed, smoke smudged.

"That accounts for your rint," observed Adam grimly. "Quartz, of an inch to one side and you wouldn't be asking what happened."

Barney stared. "What are you talking about?"

"Mean to say you don't remember this thing hitting you?"

"Nothing hit me," Barney protested irritably. "I couldn't sleep—dozed off, woke up—too hot in here. I got up, put on my dressing gown, was going to look for you. Then I saw Flower had forgotten to open this front window. It stuck, but I got it open, was reaching for that screen to put in when I passed out cold." He appealed to the doctor. "Just like the other time."

"Two Somethings"

"You probably didn't know what hit you," Adam said soothingly. "Open window—you were right in front of it."

But Doc Moore was regarding him with a bright, professional eye. "The window stuck, you say?"

"Yes, I tell you nothing hit me," he insisted.

"Then where did that stone come from?" Adam asked sardonically.

Barney said, "Search me," sat up and began looking casually around the room. His hand explored his dressing-robe pocket, his glance roved.

The notebook—he had missed it.

He turned and vanished into Barney's rooms.

The downstairs hall was empty except for Charlie. He was staring moodily at the whitewashed stone and by no sign betrayed that he was aware of my presence. I went past him and out into the night.

The big brownish ambulance was pulling away from the curb.

I shut and locked the car door and rolled up the windows, enclosing a cube of the sweltering night. The stars were gone, blanketed by thick, impenetrable clouds that hung heavily and low and steamed reluctant to let fall one drop of the suffocating earth.

The night was too long—out (it had come too much horror. In spite of my brave words to Adam I was afraid there alone in the dark. Limp bodies, contorted faces swam past me in an endless, moaning frieze—and faces, friendly faces of the people I had been with, came at me with murderous eyes. Behind some one of those speciously smiling masks lurked diabolic guilt; and as I recalled the night's atrocities I was sick with terror and longing for with longing for the night to be done.

Charity Ball Proceeds Will Help Buy Milk

ONE day that is being kept intact in the holiday rush is Dec. 29, date of the tenth annual charity ball at Rainbow Gardens. Aside from the pleasure of meeting their friends there and spending the evening dancing to the music of one of their favorite orchestras, those who attend realize that their presence will reap a whole year of benefits to underprivileged children.

Having last year completed its fund for maternity work at St. Elizabeth hospital, the Infant Welfare circle of Appleton King's Daughters, sponsor of the event, will use proceeds of this year's ball for a milk fund for children and families not eligible to receive relief from the usual agencies.

Families who try to be self-supporting deserve help, the circle feels, and because milk has more food value than anything else, the funds will be used for that commodity. Cases will be investigated and milk will be supplied all year.

Because of the charity to which their money will go, a large number of persons who do not dance or who are unable to attend the ball, have purchased tickets nevertheless, the committee reports. The price of one ticket will provide one child with sufficient milk for over a month.

As in previous years, the circle has engaged Tom Temple and his orchestra to play for the formal dance, which begins at 9 o'clock and ends at 2. Tickets may be purchased at the door.

Working to make the ball the most successful in Appleton King's Daughters history are Mrs. Guy McCorsion, general chairman of the event, and her committee, Mrs. Ray Peterson, Mrs. D. J. Courtney, Mrs. Henry Boon, Mrs. V. James Whelan, Mrs. Myron T. Ray, Mrs. William Buchanan and Mrs. Carl McKee.

WPA Worker Convicted Of Slaying Landlady

Kenosha—(U)—Circuit Judge E. B. Belden Thursday convicted Ignatz Kepin, 55-year-old WPA worker, of first degree murder in the death of his landlady, Mrs. Amelia Price, 32. Judge Belden, who heard the case without a jury, said he would pronounce sentence tomorrow. A life term is mandatory.

Kepin took the stand late yesterday and testified he had been drunk last Aug. 31, the day Mrs. Price was slain, and that he could remember nothing that happened during the day.

He said he first realized something was wrong when he awoke the next day and saw the bars in his cell at the county jail.

The defense contended there had been no premeditation because of the defendant's condition, while the state charged Kepin slashed Mrs. Price to death with a razor because she resisted his advances.

Santa Says Many Tots Order Little Brothers and Sisters

Chicago—(U)—All Santa Claus wants for Christmas is a straight man's job in a comedy act.

The white whiskered gentleman in the red suit at a loop department store confided this today. For several weeks he has been interviewing 800 little visitors daily, but the Q and A's change but little.

"What's the most satisfying thing about the Santa Claus business?" he asked, and answered, "the utter faith of childhood. And the biggest problem? To avoid shattering a child's faith."

"This morning a little girl confided she wanted an electric train. Her clothes told me she'd be lucky to get an orange. What to do? The Santa Claus gospel says in a case like that to be heartily indefinite."

"Most youngsters are so pleased with whatever they get that they have forgotten what they asked for anyway."

"An astonishing number of tots order baby brothers and sisters. We make no definite commitments. We say, 'Well, well, we'll talk it over with mother and daddy, and if you're good to Santa he'll be good to you.'"

"When a youngster asks who I am, because he just saw Santa down the street, why then the other chap is Santa's helper."

"I've got a pocket full of street plans drawn by youngsters so I won't miss their houses. I've got note telling of a snack or a bottle of beer in the ice box."

"Say, I fed a good straight line today. A youth on the edge of the crowd was egging his fiancee to tell me what she wanted for Christmas. Trying to catch him unawares, I asked, 'And what do you want, sonny?'"

The young man sat on my lap, put his arm around my shoulder and said, 'Give me the winner in the third race at Tanforan and I'll be satisfied.'"

"Well, eat your vegetables, take your nap and don't tease little sister. I'll see you Saturday night and Merry Christmas."

1,200 Children Present at Kimberly Christmas Party

Kimberly—Twelve hundred were greeted by Santa Claus with candy at the clubhouse Thursday evening during a Christmas program sponsored by the American Legion, its auxiliary, the village board and Booster club.

A short program was given before Santa arrived. It was entitled "The Man from Mars" and was staged jointly by Holy Name and public schools with Sister M. Praxedes and Miss Luella McLeod in charge. The high school glee club sang several Christmas carols.

Each child had a ticket which was presented in order to receive candy. In less than a half hour the large number of children received their gifts from Santa. The huge tree in front of the clubhouse was lighted with colorful lights in addition to a Christmas scene displayed in the park of the three wise men journeying to the stable which was also lighted.

The swing club dancing school held its Christmas party at the clubhouse Wednesday evening. Dancing furnished the entertainment after which gifts were exchanged. A picture was taken of the group around a Christmas tree which was decorated for the occasion. About 100 couples attended the event.

Holy Name school started its Christmas vacation Wednesday and the public and high school will close Friday.

Phyllis Arndt, freshman at Downer college, Milwaukee, came home to spend her vacation with her parents.

Bluejay Cagers To Hold Practice During Vacation

Team to Drill Twice Daily In Preparation for Conference Tilts

Menasha—With four hard games coming up in three weeks, Menasha High school basketball players will receive little vacation during the Christmas holidays. The Bluejays held their last drill this week on Wednesday but next Monday they will report to the gymnasium for a two-a-day drill.

From Monday through Saturday, with special emphasis on the drill Saturday, the Bluejay cagers will have morning and afternoon drills. They also will have a jamming up session on Monday, Jan. 2. They will resume the conference schedule on Tuesday, Jan. 3, when they go to Shawano to oppose the league leaders. On Friday night of the same week the Bluejays will be host to the West De Pere team. A week later Neenah High school will come to the Menasha gymnasium and on Jan. 20 Shawano will come to Menasha for a return game. The Bluejays will have no game the following week and will be about ready for a rest. The Jays have won one game in the conference and lost two. They looked dismal in losing to Kaukauna but showed improvement against New London.

Defensive Lapses
Defensive lapses have been costly to the Bluejays. Even though they defeated Clintonville, the Truckers had many shots and the score might have been closer than 27 to 12 if the Clintonville team had had any luck. Against Kaukauna the Jays showed little on offense or defense. They showed marked improvement against New London but permitted their opponents to slip through for goals in the final period.

The Jays have shown a tendency to foul, collecting more fouls in each game than their opponents. The Jays have fouled 40 times for an average of 10 a game. Their opponents have committed only 25 in four games.

The Bluejays have been outscored 105 points to 90 in four games. They counted 37 field goals and 16 free throws while their opponents have counted 42 field goals and 21 free throws.

Shamrocks to Risk CYO League Lead

Will Oppose St. John Team Monday Afternoon in St. Mary Gym

Menasha—The third round of games between Neenah and Menasha teams in the C. Y. O. basketball league will be played Monday afternoon at St. Mary school gymnasium. The Shamrocks of St. Patrick parish will risk their league lead against the St. John's team.

The Shamrocks have won two games by sizeable margins. They defeated St. Mary's 38 to 24 and St. Margaret Mary 31 to 17, coasting in the last half after having a 20 to 3 lead. The St. John team has lost two games, with St. Margaret Mary scoring a 32 to 19 victory and St. Mary's edging a close 29 to 24 decision.

C. Godhardt, red-hair center of the Shamrocks, is the league's leading scorer with 29 points in two tilts although he played little over a half of the last game. The Shamrocks and the Polish team will meet at 3 o'clock Monday afternoon in the St. Mary gymnasium. The second game on the program Monday afternoon will pit the St. Mary team against the St. Margaret Mary group of Neenah. The Neenah Saints had an off day in shooting when they lost to the Shamrocks or the game might have been much closer. They will be aiming to get back on the victory side of the ledger Monday. The winner of the tilt will advance to second place in the league and play for a 4 o'clock game.

Pool Maintenance Expense at School Set at $150 Yearly

Superintendent Refutes "Expensive in Up-keep" Claim

Menasha—Maintenance expense of the swimming pool at Menasha High school for a year has been figured at $150, according to F. B. Younger, superintendent of schools, refuting the claim that "swimming pools are expensive in upkeep." Mr. Younger has presented information on the cost of maintaining the pool to officials of the Oshkosh board of education who contemplate construction of a pool there.

The $150 expense includes purification, circulation and heating of the water. The cost of the pool itself was approximately $12,000 including a glazed brick interior finish and equipment to circulate, purify and heat the water but excluding cost of excavating and construction of a concrete retaining wall.

Last week over 400 girls and boys used the pool. In addition there was time allotted for adult patronage with 180 women attending in classes and 60 men in another group. Towels and suits are washed by women employed in a PWA project. The October wash list included 3,137 towels, 1,396 girls' suits and 1,120 boys' suits. Adults may furnish their own suits or towels or rent them. A class fee is charged to the adults.

Water Purified
The water for the pool was turned in last April and the same water is still in use. No water change is contemplated until next summer. A constant circulation and purification of water once every 24 hours provides health protection.

The water is filtered and treated with a chlorine produced from rock salt and alum. Two tons of salt costing $18 and one barrel of alum were purchased. Half of those supplies still remain. Cost of heating the water is negligible because the heating apparatus is connected to the regular school heating plant.

Mail Peak Comes One Day Earlier

Top Cancellation Count at Neenah Recorded Dec. 21

Neenah—While there was a large increase in the amount of Christmas mail handled at the Neenah post office this year, an unusual incident occurred in the time of mailing, which took the place of importance during the Christmas mailing rush.

Postmaster Clarence Schultz reported that the peak of the Christmas mailing was one day earlier this year and that records of cancellations show that this was the first time it has occurred here. The peak, the records reveal, always has occurred on Dec. 21, while this year it was on Dec. 21.

During the four rush days of the Christmas mailing season, 135,840 cancellations were made at the postoffice. This doesn't include parcels. The postmaster also reported that there was a large increase in insured parcel post.

While there was more mail this year, the increase wasn't a hindrance in handling. The postmaster explained that the crew is more experienced this year. One night this week, postal crews had to work until midnight to clear the mails, while on the other nights, the work was finished around 10 o'clock.

The post office will be closed Sunday and Monday.

May, 1938: Roosevelt Decides to Let New Tax Bill Become Law

BY VOLTA TORREY
New York (AP) — To 13 high school graduates last May in Arthur Dale, W. Va., a New Deal model town, President Roosevelt talked taxes.

Previously he had raised the question of taxing government bondholders and jobholders. Business men, on the other hand, had spotlighted another issue, the undistributed-profits and capital-gains levies, and

CHAPTER V OF A MONTH-BY-MONTH REVIEW OF 1938

Congress finally had passed a bill to modify them.

In his commencement address, Mr. Roosevelt announced his decision to let that bill become law, but he wouldn't sign it. And he told the class of '38: "Our whole tax system, state, local and federal, can and must be greatly improved in the coming year."

Primaries had begun. The President wouldn't talk about them. But his son spoke for Florida's Sen. Claude Pepper (he won), Secretary Ickes criticized Oregon's Gov. Charles H. Martin (he lost), and Jim Farley urged Pennsylvania Democrats to nominate Gov. George H. Earle for senator (he won in May but lost in November) and CIO's Thomas Kennedy for governor (he lost). Pepper's victory pepped up the President's partisans. But in Pennsylvania's primary, G. O. P. Generalissimo Hamilton saw "the handwriting on the wall for the New Deal and its radical and crackbrain allies."

pitched woo at Il Duce in Rome, and 2,600 trumpeters played the "Lohengrin" wedding march. Poet Arthur Guiterman wrote that "all Europe now is understanding diverse, conflicting axis-making." And it looked in May as though war might pop out any day, but the Czechs mobilized and wishful thinkers figured Hitler's bluff had been called.

Mexico's President Lazaro Cardenas won a petty war from Gen. Saturnino Cedillo and severed diplomatic relations with Britain while squabbling over oil. And Brazil's President Getulio Vargas, with pistol in hand, asserted himself and his place from allegedly fascist "Green Shirts."

For the first time, a U. S. town, Farmingdale, L. I., was blacked out in a war try-out. "Our Town" became the Pulitzer prize play. Norman Thomas had been hustled out of Mayor Hague's Jersey City and two congressmen failed to deliver well-ballyhooed speeches there.

Youth In The News
"Love Walked In" was May's hit song. Secretary Ickes and Jane Dahlman, 25, were wed in Ireland. Violinist Yehudi Menuhin and an Australian heiress became engaged. Brides-to-be, too, were his sisters, Hepzibah, 17, and Yaltah, 16.

William McChesney Martin, Jr., 31, was chosen as chairman of the N. Y. Stock Exchange's governors. Britain's "Henry Ford," Viscount Nuffield, was nearly but not quite kidnapped. Two-Ton Tony Galento was hailed as the world's best second-rate heavyweight. Sally Rand lectured Harvard's frosh. And everybody sympathized with six-week-old Helaine Colan of Chicago, suffering from glioma, a

Movie Land Its People and Products

"Brother Rat," the gay comedy of life in a military school, which ran on a Broadway stage for eighteen consecutive months and had three road companies successfully touring the country at the same time, is now a picture and will have its first local showing next Saturday at the Appleton Theatre. It stars Wayne Morris and Priscilla Lane, two young stars who already have had several sensational successes. Others in the splendid cast include Johnnie "Scat" Davis, Jane Wymann, Ronal Reagan, Gordon Oliver, Henry O'Neill, Olin Howland and many others.

Charles Dickens' "A Christmas Carol" will also be seen on this big holiday program. This beloved story has brought Yuletide cheer to millions of readers throughout the world. Reginald Owen is cast as the miserly Scrooge, and Terry Kilburn as Tiny Tim.

By Jimmie Fidler
Hollywood — According to the trade papers, which have made an up-to-date check, the movie Quiz Contest being conducted in connection with the great "Motion Pictures Are Your Best Entertainment" campaign, is a colossal flop. Less than two weeks remain before the closing date and only 100,000 entries have been received.

Theatre lobbies are stacked with entry blanks which movie-goers were too disinterested to take—and that in spite of the fact that the prizes offered, 5,000 of them in all, range up to a neat $50,000. The public apathy to a contest like that is significant.

Isn't it high time for Hollywood producers to realize that John Public, through satiation, has become bored with such high-pressure publicity stunts? Isn't it high time to concede that the only way to sell him theatre tickets is to produce consistently good entertainment.

All the fanfare and foofaraw accompanying the current campaign is wasted. Theatre-goers have gone right on patronizing stand-out shows and staying away from second-rate productions, just as they were doing before Hollywood plastered the country with "Best Entertainment" slogans.

The fact is that movies can no longer be sold on a novelty basis. They have become common-places as much a part of the American scheme of things as bacon and eggs. And the public is shopping for them just as it shops for its stable groceries. Ask any sugar refiner, for instance, how he sells his product. He will answer "by quality and price"—not "by trick advertising."

Roosevelt Names Harry Hopkins to Cabinet Position

conservatives when the question of confirming the appointment comes up.

For, ever since he graduated from Grinnell college, in Iowa, with high academic honors, Hopkins' career has consisted of two things: social work, especially as it relates to the unemployed, and the dispensation of relief funds, first for the state of New York and later for the federal government.

From college Hopkins went to a job in a boys' camp and from that to a post with the Association for Improving the Condition of the Poor in New York City. For four years, 1913 to 1917, he was in charge of widows' pensions in New York city, a city job.

During the war period he directed civilian relief in New Orleans, and was manager of the southern division of the American Red Cross. He returned in 1922 and soon joined the staff of the New York Tuberculosis and Health association, which he served until 1931.

In that year, Mr. Roosevelt, then governor of New York, called him at the state's temporary emergency relief administration as director, and, subsequently chairman. In 1933, Mr. Roosevelt called him to Washington to organize the federal relief system.

Frequent Quarrels
Since that time, he has dispensed more public funds than any other man in history, at least, in peacetime. While doing so he has run into a succession of rows with men both in and out of the administration.

His agency has been constantly under fire from political critics, but never to such an extent as in the election campaigns of last fall. Prominent Republicans have announced that they will seek an investigation this winter.

Through it all, Hopkins has gone his way, outwardly unperturbed. Unlike most of those who have been numbered among the president's close advisers, Hopkins has maintained that ranking over a period of time. His appointment to the commerce department was regarded as showing that his prestige with the administration never was greater.

Popular Person
Personally, Hopkins is brisk, good-natured and witty, popular socially with both friends and foes. He used to play tennis a good deal and shoot a round of golf in the high eighties, but hasn't had time in recent years to keep that up. But he likes a game of poker or bridge, and is an occasional visitor at the nearby Maryland race tracks.

He is a widower (Mrs. Hopkins died a year ago). He has two children—a married son and a small daughter.

Harrington is 51, a ruddy-cheeked, keen-eyed army colonel who has been chief engineer and assistant administrator of WPA since September, 1935. The war department lent him to Hopkins' office for that special duty.

Harrington's Career
Harrington came to WPA in the middle of what he calls "a normal officer's career," but which associates say was far above average. For one thing, no officer his junior in years is his senior in rank—a full colonel.

During the war he was a youthful temporary colonel, on duty part of the time in France.

An important factor in Harrington's promotion to WPA chief was believed to be his lack of political affiliations. He boasts of never having voted in his life. And, he reminds friends, his father was a Democrat, yet his appointment to West Point was made by a Republican.

New London Plans For Ski Tourney

Rushes Arrangements Following Heavy Snow Last Night

DATE IS JAN. 12

Big Field Expected Because There are No Other Meets

NEW LONDON — With the snow of last night, the New London Ski club took new hope and announced, through C. H. Kellogg, secretary, the entries of a large field of first rate Class A riders for the club's fifth annual ski tournament scheduled at Mosquito hill Monday, Jan. 2.

The New London club is fortunate in getting the date for its meet, sanctioned by the Central United States Ski association, will be the only one on that day, and riders far and near will be free to attend without conflicting with other engagements.

A field of nearly 100 riders is expected to ride. The hill with its 90-foot tower, remodeled to safer and faster specifications last fall, promises to offer greater distances and more thrills.

A new scoring system being developed by the central association, by which the results of the meet can be announced shortly after the event while the spectators still are present, will be used for the first time. Previously the winners of the various events have not been announced until the time of the banquet in the evening. Under the new plan the contest will be more interesting to spectators and will center more attention on personalities.

The Entry List

Five outstanding Class A riders already are entered in the meet with promises of more. About 10 to 12 are expected in the final lists. Twenty Class B and ten Class C riders have accepted to date. Clubs sending delegations are those at Racine, Munising, Duluth and the Chicago Winter Sports club.

Among the Class A riders definitely entered are Bob Roecker, now of Duluth, who rode for New London several years ago and made his home here; Olaf Hoyem, Racine, an outstanding performer; Lawrence Maurin of the Milwaukee-Oconomowoc club who has thrived crowds here in years past; Gunnar Rebne of Wisconsin Rapids Tri-Norse club; and Ingvar "Ole" Arneson who represents New London and won first honors last year.

New London will have some new faces in its club. Three Class C riders are Lawrence Kaja, Jack Sullivan and Russell Jacobson of Wisconsin Rapids. The latter two are newcomers. Class B will show Franklin Carlson and Les Jacobson and the senior class, Frank Carlson and Ruben Voie, the latter a resident of New London.

Club members will begin preparing the slide early next week and New London riders are expected to pay a visit and practice on the hill the latter part of the week.

Free, reserved parking at the bottom of the hill will be provided this year as always. Club officers are arranging the committees to handle details of the big event.

L. C. Holy Name Teams Defeat Menasha Quint

Little Chute—Senior Holy Name cagers, teams 3 and 4, defeated the Menasha Cities Service squad, with the first game going two overtimes before Team 3 could score a victory, 27 to 25, and Team 4 won 27 to 25.

The reason the Menasha squad played two games was that a team under the name of Cahall Tailors of Appleton failed to appear.

In the Team 3-Service game, the score was deadlocked at 23-23 at the end of the game in the first overtime period. Red Boots and Graef each scored a field goal to again tie the score. The second overtime was decided on the first goal and Marvin Hartyes looped in a side shot on the tipoff to win the game, 27 to 25.

In the second game, the Holy Name trailed, 17 to 11, in the third quarter but spurted to win 27 to 25. Van Houf paced the Chutes with five field goals and two free shots while Garbacz and Schmidt scored four buckets each for the losers.

Connie Mack, 76 Today, Wants One More Championship Team

BY JOHN H. REITINGER
PHILADELPHIA — "I, Connie Mack, 76 today, will not be satisfied completely with life unless he produces another winning baseball team."

"The tall, straight-shouldered leader of the Philadelphia Athletics planned no particular birthday anniversary celebration. "Birthdays are coming too often and too fast to do anything about it," he said.

Sitting in his shirt sleeves, watching snow flakes flutter lazily past his office window, the old manager reflected on more than a half-century in baseball.

"If I had it all to do over again I wouldn't change a thing," he said.

"Looking back over the years I have had bad ones in the game, but I also have had many, many happy ones."

He said his ambition "at this stage of life" was to "live Philadelphia a good ball club again."

His retirement is as far away as the stars, Mack said. "That only comes up in the minds of other people; never in mine."

Connie Mack has no boss to tell him he "won't do" and ask for his resignation. Mack owns 50 percent of the ball club, and while he does not have legal control, he has the confidence and consent of the other 50 percent to run the club as he deems best.

Little Chute Five Bows to Bridgers By 17 to 16 Score

Schronen, Indian Center, Has Too Much Height For St. John

LITTLE CHUTE — St. John High cagers suffered an upset last night at the hands of the Stockbridge Indians at Stockbridge by a score of 17 to 16. Schronen, Indian center, looped two field goals in the final minute giving his mates a victory. Schronen pestered the St. John cagers all evening with his six-foot-two height and collected four field goals and two gift shots for over half his team's points.

Both Weyenberg and C. Vanden Heuvel went out on personals trying to stop the Indian's center.

The first quarter ended with the Dutchmen leading 8 to 3 and the half ended at 9 all, after Coach Miron shot in his reserves. The third period ended 14 to 13 in favor of St. John.

As the game was non-conference, St. John second stringers played over half the evening, giving their coach a chance to watch them under fire.

Stockbridge showed a fighting team which formed its offense around its tall center with Hemauer and Vander Boom, guards, working the ball in to him at the free throw circle.

Jimmy Koehn again paced the Dutchmen with three field goals and two free tosses, with Van Asten a close second with three field goals and one gift shot.

In the preliminary, St. John Bee squad scored an easy 28 to 7 victory. It took a 10 to 1 lead in the first quarter and increased it to 21 to 3 at halftime. In the third period the reserve seconds played and held the Indians to a lone bucket with the quarter ending 26 to 5.

One of the best "cracks" of the pro football season came from a New York sports scribe.

When the Green Bay Packers were training at the New York Athletic club for their first game with the New York Giants this season, Coach E. L. Lambeau held some secret drills in the club ballroom. The reporter happened upon the scene while the players were going through their paces, and inquired:

"What's this? Doing the Lambeau walk?"

This from Stoney McGlynn down at Milwaukee:

Our estimation of Frank Murray as a grid coach took a tumble today. . . . We always thought Frank was a smart hombre but Ward Cuff, one of his former Marquette stars and now a high lighter with the Giants, let the cat out of the bag. . . . Ward said in an interview that Gantebum was definitely ineligible on the disputed pass play. . . . But Ward, we learn, was the New York Giant who "tailed" Milt and made the tackle. . . . We never thought we'd live to see the day when a Murray-coached player would cover an "ineligible" player. . . . How come Ward? . . . Were you just practicing up on your insurance salesmanship by selling the fourth estate a bill of goods? . . .

Buckeyes, Purdue Lose Cage Games

Former Loses to Washington, Latter to Southern California

Chicago —(AP)— Two more big ten basketball teams fell from the ranks of the undefeated last night and another will risk its perfect record tonight against a non-conference opponent.

Ohio State and Purdue were victims of intersectional opponents on the Pacific coast. Tonight Indiana, undefeated in four straight games, will clash at Indianapolis with Butler which also is undefeated. The Butler five has scored three victories, including triumphs over Iowa and Wisconsin.

Ohio State, vanquished 43 to 41 at Seattle by the University of Washington, will play a second game with the coast school tonight. Other conference teams will be inactive.

Ohio State's setback counted with Northwestern's 48 to 30 defeat by Notre Dame and Purdue's 35 to 30 loss to Southern California eliminated the Buckeyes and the Boilermakers from the unbeaten class and left conference representatives, with only one conquest against outside opposition last night.

Michigan achieved this, defeating Cornell 42 to 27 behind the accurate basket shooting of Tim Rae and Ed Thomas.

Only Indiana, Illinois, Minnesota and Michigan now remain undefeated among the Big Ten schools.

THIS IS SHOOTING!

Dayton, O., —(AP)— Here's a record: Phil Miller of French Lick, Ind., North America's highest average trapshooter during 1938, missed only 31 targets of the 3,050 he shot at from the 16-yard line during the year. That gave him the almost unbelievable average of .9893, the highest ever recorded on that number of targets.

The Year In Sports

Boxing

BY DILLON GRAHAM
AP Feature Service Writer
NEW YORK — This was the toughest year on boxing champions since the good Marquis of Queensbury tagged militants on gladiators' fists.

In a year unparalleled in title changes, more than three-fourths of the fistic kings were toppled either by persuasive belts on the kisser or by commission edicts.

The twelvemonth also saw Henry Armstrong crowned as the ring's first triple champion; Joe Louis thrice successful in defending his heavyweight laurels; and disputed ownership of the middleweight diadem.

The ever-punching, ever-annoying, ever-discouraging Armstrong, who began the year as featherweight ruler, strode through the welterweight and lightweight divisions to construct his triple-decked crown.

Armstrong's Campaign

First, the little Los Angeles Negro, strong as a bull, tireless as a perpetual-motion contraption, battered loose Barney Ross' welterweight diadem from its hinges. He plastered a terrific beating in Barney's blood-soaked face and body, but the gallant Ross was in there at the finish.

Then came Lou Ambers, a jumping jack in his own right, who gave Armstrong a spirited duel, and cut him badly on the lips, but lost the lightweight championship. Outgrowing the featherweight class, Hank relinquished this title. Later he easily defended his welterweight laurels against Ceferino Garcia and Al Manfred.

It took Joe Louis three rounds to kayo Natie Mann and five to destroy Harry Thomas in "warmup" title fights for his real defense against Max Schmeling, the German who had knocked him out in 1936.

But Louis, a vicious animal slaking his foe, demolished the Teuton in 2:04 of the first round, setting an all-time speed record for a heavyweight championship fight. He wasted no time feinting or sparring, but rushed in on Max, who was unprepared for such a savage onslaught, and rained punches on the ex-champion. As he turned to avoid more blows, Schmeling caught one in the kidneys which he said disabled him.

The Middle-Weights

The middleweights provided much action. Defending Champion Freddie Steele was mercilessly beaten in a non-title go by Fred Apostoli, the belting bellhop from San Francisco. Refusing Apostoli a championship match, Steele fought Al Hostak, a fellow townsman from Seattle, with the title at stake, and was knocked out in the first round.

Then Solly Krieger of Brooklyn, beaten by Apostoli, won the title from Hostak by decision. He was recognized by the National Boxing Association but the New York Athletic commission decided Apostoli would meet Young Corbett of San Francisco, who had surprisingly bested Apostoli last winter, for the title. Apostoli won by a knockout.

Krieger and Apostoli likely will be matched early next year.

The New York commission named Joey Archibald of Providence, R. I., as featherweight champion after he defeated Mike Belloise but the NBA ruled that Archibald must beat Leo Rodak of Chicago before it recognized him. Peter Scalzo kayoed Archibald in a non-title fight.

Benny Lynch's flyweight title was declared vacant when he was unable to make the weight for a title go in England with Jackie Jurich.

Sixto Escobar won the bantamweight title by defeating Harry Jeffra.

John Henry Lewis is the NBA light-heavyweight champion, but the New York commission vacated his title because he failed to meet Tiger Jack Fox. Lewis then tossed a $100,000 law suit against the commissioners. Fox beat Al Gainer in New York's elimination tourney and is to fight Melio Bettina for the title. Lewis signed to meet Joe Louis early next year for the heavyweight championship.

Barrel-contoured Tony Galento, proprietor of a bear parlor in Orange, N. J., a prototype of the Gay Nineties who trained on ale, pretzels and cigars, projected some color into the heavyweight situation. His antics, wisecracks, and crying for Louis—"Give me dat bum! I moider him!"—drew attention to Tony. But Galento faded when pneumonia felled him just before a bout with J. H. Lewis.

LOUIS lands a right to Schmeling's jaw. The blow all but knocks the Teuton out of focus.

HANK ARMSTRONG, the welterweight and lightweight king, flexes his forearm muscles. Joey Archibald (right) is the newly-crowned featherweight ruler.

Former Champion Jim Braddock narrowly outpointed Tommy Farr in January, and retired. Max Baer returned to the wars, beat Farr and lined himself up for a possible shot at Louis next year. Young Lou Nova became a possible heavyweight challenger by beating Gunnar Barlund.

Jimmy Adamick's heavyweight rise was ended after a knockout by Roscoe Toles sent Jimmy to the hospital with a brain concussion.

Hinkle, Hutson Leading Scorers

Former Counts 59 Points And Latter Totals 57 Tallies

New York — (AP)— Though they were beaten in the championship playoff by the New York Giants, the Green Bay Packers contributed the two top scorers in the 1938 season of the National Professional Football league.

Final figures released yesterday show veteran fullback Clark Hinkle on top with 7 touchdowns, 7 extra points and three field goals for 58 points. Don Hutson, the Packers' star end, tied his own 1936 league mark by catching nine touchdowns passes and added three points after touchdown for 57 tallies.

Third place went to Joe Carter of the Philadelphia Eagles, with 48, followed by Ward Cuff, New York Giants, 45, and Andy Farkas, Detroit Lion "freshman," and Jack Manders, Chicago Bear veteran, 37 each.

Carter's eight touchdowns made him runner-up to Hutson in that department, with Hinkle third. Cuff

Christmas in France

Christmas trees have been used in France for about 100 years. They do not date back so far as a holiday custom in France as in Germany. Although they now appear in many homes in France, they are not so popular there as in the United States and Canada.

One French custom is to have a yearly procession in which a Christmas tree is taken through the streets of Paris. The procession is part of a drive to obtain money for charity.

An odd sight in some French homes is a "Christmas hoop." It is made by bending an evergreen branch into a circle, and is hung from the ceiling of the parlor or kitchen. Red apples, little bundles of nuts, and colored egg-shells are tied to the hoop. With the help of small openings, the contents of the eggs are blown out, leaving the shells nearly whole.

In certain country districts the old Yule log custom still goes on. When possible, the Yule log is cut from an oak tree, since the oak is believed to bring good fortune. The log is lighted on Christmas Eve.

There is a belief in France that harm will come to a home if the family cat meows on Christmas night. For this reason kitty is given an all it can eat on Christmas Eve, in the hope that it will curl up and sleep soundly until morning.

In telling of his boyhood memories of the Yule log, a French poet wrote:

"Walking in line, we took it home. The oldest member of the family was at the head of the line, and I, the youngest, brought up the rear. Reaching the house, we marched around the kitchen three times, then went to the fireplace where my father poured a glass of wine on the log. 'Joy, joy!' he exclaimed. 'Christmas gives us all good things.' The rest of us answered 'Joy, joy, joy!' in chorus. As the first flame leapt up, my father crossed himself, and we all sat down to the table."

Some Frenchmen believe the charcoal of a Yule log has magic power. It is supposed that if a bit of the charcoal is put under a bed, it will guard the person sleeping there from being struck by lightning anytime during the next 12 months. Other fancies are that Yule log charcoal will bring a good crop of corn if placed in a field; that it will help herds of cattle and flocks of poultry to have good health in Brittany 'tis said that if the ashes of a Yule log are put in a well, the water will be kept good.

French children often place their shoes near the fireplace where the Yule log is burned. They think that the Christ Child will fill the shoes with sweets, and perhaps will leave presents as well.

French children receive dolls and other toys at Christmas time, but the general custom among adults is not to give presents to one another until New Year's day.

Prices of Wheat Strengthened on Chicago Market

Announcement of Huge Purchases Stimulates Values

Chicago—(AP)—Announcement that the United States government already had disposed of 75,000,000 bushels, three-fourths of America's proposed wheat exports this season, stimulated price upturns today.

It was disclosed further that a deal to ship 3,000,000 bushels of wheat to Spain may be completed within the next few days, Winnipeg prices ruled relatively stronger than the Chicago market, it being reported that the character of buying at Winnipeg indicated either a large export business or the covering of old sales.

Receipts were: Wheat 8 cars, corn 91, oats 49.

At the close, Chicago wheat futures were 1-1/2 higher compared with yesterday's finish, May 67-1/2, July 67-1/2, corn 1-1/4 up, May 52-1/2, July 53-1/2, and oats 1-1/4 advanced.

MILWAUKEE GRAINS

Milwaukee—(AP)—Wheat No. 2 hard 66-67; corn No. 2 yellow 52-53; No. 2 white 55; oats No. 2 white 30-32; rye No. 2, 47-51; malted barley 48-48; feed 25-43.

"BUTCHER!" WOMAN SCREAMS AT HER FATHER

Screaming: "You butcher!" Mrs. Helen Angilli, 25, is restrained by Detective Lieut. Frank Ryan in a Los Angeles police office, as she starts to rush menacingly at her prostrated father, William Spinelli, 59. Spinelli, a jobless bootblack, admitted, according to police, that he killed his wife, Rose, with an ax, then dismembered and burned her body.

Babson Declares Business Is Well Above 1937 Level

Claims Year of Good Commercial Activity Lies Ahead

BY ROGER BABSON

Brunswick, Georgia—Few people this weekend are thinking about their jobs, professions, or businesses. For two or three brief days the thoughts and cares of this troubled world are being forgotten. I have no intention of breaking into these hallowed hours by emphasizing the problems facing our country today. Rather, let me give readers two cheerful facts about current business as an introduction to what resolutions for the coming year.

The two cheerful facts concern the activity and trend of business at this Christmas season:

1. ACTIVITY. General business is today 18 per cent better than it was last Christmas. Early reports show that holiday trade has practically equalled last season's big

RESOLUTIONS FOR 1939

1. LABOR: Resolved that the Wagner act be amended to give employer and worker equal protection.
2. TAXES: Resolved that the tax laws be changed to encourage initiative and to penalize "rascals" investing.
3. SOCIAL SECURITY: Resolved that the Social Security Act be put on a pay-as-you-go basis.
4. RAILROADS: Resolved that the railroads be given a free hand to get back on their own feet.
5. UTILITIES: Resolved that the TVA play fair and deal justly in its great undertaking.
6. CONGRESS: Resolved that "reform legislation" be shelved for 1939 at least.
7. DEFENSE: Resolved that armaments be expanded without forgetting that peace comes only as the causes of war are eliminated.
8. RELIGION: Resolved that the Christmas spirit be extended and applied throughout 1939.

retail volume. Nearly every manufacturing industry is now busier than it was a year ago.

2. Trend. Last year, general business was rushing downhill like a runaway freight train. Six months of lay-offs and hard times faced us. Today, business is swinging vigorously upward and a year of good activity lies ahead.

Happy Contrast.

The contrast between this Christmas and last could not be more complete. Confidence in the future is returning. People this year are not worried that a new and bigger depression lies over the threshold of New Year. Few expect a boom, but no one expects a crash.

Nevertheless, big problems face us in 1939. We must solve them before we can have lasting prosperity for all. Moreover, these problems can be worked out only through the cooperation of everyone—employer and worker. Government is a list of our major problems. Their solution should be made a national code of New Year "resolutions" in which everyone can take part.

1. The Wagner act should be amended. Employers must be given the same protection as workers. We cannot expect to have employment increase materially if this act is not modified. Unless everyone urges his congressmen and senators to push such an amendment, however, the act can not be changed.

Modify Tax Laws

2. Our tax laws must be modified. Uncle Sam must give back the profit incentive to businessmen and investors. New government bonds should be taxed and public employees should come under all income tax laws to which other individuals are subject. Moreover, immediate steps toward budget-balancing must be taken.

3. The Social Security Act should be put on a "pay-as-you-go" basis. The current method of building up a gigantic reserve fund can lead only to inflation and ultimate disaster. Yet, I see little hope for such a change in this law in 1939.

4. The railroads should be given a free hand. Let them cut expenses, change rates, eliminate losing branch lines, and the like. Moreover, those railroads now in receivership should be reorganized immediately. If the railroads can get back on their feet they can help prosperity in 1939 more than any other industry.

TVA Should Be Fair

5. The Tennessee valley authority should be fair. The utilities will never invest money in new plants unless the TVA deliberately and maliciously refuses to pay a fair price for existing utility investments. I have just returned from inspecting this development and believe in its purpose, but it will best succeed by being just.

6. Reform legislation should be shelved for one year at least. We must give industry a breathing spell from new laws. Let the social gains of the past five years be digested and consolidated in 1939. My guess is that "business-busting" will be out of style on Pennsylvania avenue for this year at least.

7. Armaments should probably be expanded. While an economic waste, yet the United States today needs an adequate defense program. There we can concentrate our energies on developing a greater friendship and peace with South America. I hope that our newspapers in 1939 will target Europe and its war aims and rebuild public confidence in American peace and prosperity.

8. The Christmas spirit should last throughout the year. The incessant struggle of one group against another must stop. The greatest need of America and all the world is a rebirth of unselfishness. Until we get this, I see no hope of lasting prosperity. This resolution is not something that can be legislated. It is something that starts within the hearts of each of us!

New York—(AP)—Buying of rails and selected industrials gave the stock market a rising slant today despite profit-taking and more tax-selling.

Gains ran to a point or so and closing quotations were not far from the best. The pace was fairly speedy in the forenoon, but slowed at the tail-end of the session. Transfers were 1,218,637 shares.

Carriers extended their rally of Thursday at the opening and were the most active in the list throughout the proceedings. Further support for this long-neglected group was coincident with publication of the recommendations of the president's railway committee submitted to the chief executive today. The financial sector seemed to find some constructive suggestions in the report, but opinions varied as to whether they would net through congress. The consensus, though, was that relief legislation would be enacted, one way or the other.

The transportation stocks also had the benefit of official figures on last week's freight loadings which, unexpectedly, showed that mounting miscellaneous shipments offset a drop in coal haulings and made the total decrease for the period less than seasonal. Aircrafts revived in the morning.

after their recent relapse, but subsequently lost recovery vigor. Rail bonds pushed up briskly, along with stocks. Commodities improved. Wheat at Chicago was up 1/2 to 1 cent a bushel and corn gained 1/4 to 1/2. In late transactions cotton was unchanged to 15 cents a bale higher. Near mid-afternoon sterling was off 1-16 of a cent at $4.66 and the French franc .001 of a cent down at 2.63 cents. Foreign securities markets were quiet, with American shares regaining popularity.

The Rev. Cypryan Abler, O. M. Cap., pastor of St. Joseph's church, will be celebrant of the solemn high mass at midnight Saturday at St. Joseph's. The Rev. Father Gerard, O. M. Cap., will be deacon and the Rev. Father Paul, O. M. Cap., sub-deacon. The choir under the direction of Prof. A. J. Theiss will sing "Missa Mater Admirabilis" by P. Griesbacher, and a 10-piece orchestra will supplement the organ. Beginning at 11:40 the choir will sing "Silent Night" and "Jesu Bambino" by Pietro Yon, and the orchestra will play a Christmas overture as well as the accompaniment for the mass. At the offertory the choir will sing "Laetentur Coeli" by J. Wiegand and after the mass it will sing "March Pontificale" by Gounod. Masses on Christmas morning will be at 5:30, 6:45, 8, 9:15, 10:15 and 11:30. The 10:15 mass will be a solemn high mass at which the choir will repeat the midnight music, and the Young Ladies sodality will sing Christmas hymns at the 8 o'clock mass and the school children at the 9:15 mass.

There will be a midnight mass at St. Theresa church Saturday night as well as the usual Sunday masses during the morning.
